REPORT.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS,
STATE OF NEW YORK:
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
ALBANY, January 15th, 1866.

To His Excellency REUBEN E. FENTON,

Commander-in-Chief.

SIR—I have the honor to submit to your Excellency the report of the Adjutant General's Department for the year ending December 31st, 1865.

When I entered upon the duties of the Department a year ago, the assignment of quotas, under the President's call of December 19th, 1864, for 300,000 men to fill up the armies, had not been determined. On or about the 24th day of January, 1865, the quota of this State was announced at 61,076, over and above all credits prior to December 19th, 1864. Under the impression, from the data on file in this Department, that the quota so announced was excessive, by your Excellency's direction, Colonel J. B. Stonehouse, Assistant Adjutant General, was dispatched to Washington, accompanied by a joint Committee of the Legislature, for the purpose of examining into the matter of credits properly allowed to the State, for men put in under former calls, and to endeavor to secure the correction of any errors that might be found to exist, prejudicial to this State, in credits and quotas. A reduction of twenty-five per cent, from the quota as first announced, was the result of this effort. The fifteenth day of February was fixed for a general draft, unless the quotas should be previously filled, and the twenty-fifth day of January had come round before the correction of the quota had been secured. Pending the efforts made to reduce what was termed the revised quota—owing to the general impression that it was excessive—that recruitments under former calls had, by reason of the large bounties paid by cities, towns and counties, heavily burdened the tax-payers—and the absence of any adequate State provision regulating or providing for payment of bounties—it was next to impossible to secure any considerable number of recruits.

With a view to stimulate recruitments and thereby prevent the impending draft, application was made to the War Department for permission to organize five new regiments and fifty detached or independent companies of infantry, to be credited on the call, which application was granted. But by the time the necessary orders could be issued and published from this Department for their organization, the orders of the War Department relating to the musters of men for new organizations which had previously existed, were revoked, in the respect, that instead of allowing the muster of the men as fast as recruited, new organizations were compelled to recruit and hold at the rendezvous men sufficient to form a minimum organization, before the men could be mustered in, so as to receive clothing, pay, or bounties. Believing it to be utterly impossible to recruit and organize in the face of these manifest difficulties—while general recruits for the service, and for "Hancock's Veteran Corps," which was then organizing, were receiving clothing, advance pay and bounties, as fast as the men were enlisted and mustered by Provost Marshals—such representations were made to and urged upon the War Department as secured, after considerable delay, for new organizations, the same advantages in respect to muster, clothing, pay and bounties, as were allowed in the case of general recruits. These complications and embarrassments thus briefly recited, and the general expectation that the Legislature would, by timely and appropriate legislation, relieve localities from the necessity of raising money to pay bounties and defray the expenses of recruiting, and equalize the offering and payment of the same under such penalties as would prevent the competition between different municipal localities—which had got to be not only ruinous to the taxpayers, but prolific of frauds and bounty-jumping—and the difficulties experienced by the Legislature in framing a law adequate to afford the requisite relief, by reason of the constitutional and querulous scruples of the financial officer of the State, who manifested a disposition to create rather than to overcome difficulties, and whose co-operation was necessary to secure any advantages from any law the Legislature might enact, operated, to hinder and delay recruitments, so that the day fixed for the general draft came round before any considerable portion of the State's quota was furnished. Fortunately, however, owing to the unceasing and determined efforts of your Excellency, and of the Legislature, under all discouragements, to secure the State against any general draft, and make such legislative and financial provision as would secure the filling of the quota, and relieve cities, towns and counties from the payment of bounties under the pending call, and as a just and proper measure of relief to provide for a reimbursement to such localities for any excess of former credits as were applied to the reduction of the last quota of the State, securing such progress in recruitments before the close of February, as satisfied the War Department that the call made by the Government would be seasonably and fully satisfied.

I have thus, at some length, but as briefly as possible, referred to the period of last winter, suggesting some of the difficulties and embarrassments under which the State government labored at the time, and I believe I hazard little in saying that though it proved to be the last hour of darkness before the dawn of the glorious peace which so soon followed, it was a period of more anxiety and real concern than of any since the withdrawal of McClellan's army from the Peninsula. Not that our gallant armies under Grant and Sherman had suffered defeat, or that we were really doubtful of what the end would be, or in the least degree wanting in a just confidence in the sagacity and judgment of him who, in his military combinations and strategy, is acknowledged the most successful, if not the most able soldier of our times; but we had passed through nearly four years of war; our own State had sent to the field within that period in round numbers (450,000) four hundred and fifty thousand men; our dead heroes numbered their thousands upon thousands; our national indebtedness, in its largely increasing proportions, was a "nightmare" to the timid, a matter of real concern to the cautious and prudent, and the source of confident predictions of all sorts of evil by rebel sympathizers at home and abroad; a comparatively heavy local indebtedness, with unsettled and delicate relations with foreign governments, together with many other less prominent causes, made the period an anxious one. Happily, however, the generalship which conceived and executed the Sherman campaign, and that held, the while, the rebel army in Virginia so persistently and successfully confronted that it dare not venture upon a movement, and finally compelled the full surrender of the last armed foe of the Government, solved every problem upon which a reasonable fear could be based.

The number of men put in under the last call was thirty-two thousand nine hundred and sixty-five (32,965). Of the five new regiments authorized to be raised, but three were actually recruited, viz: the 192d, 193d and 194th. The two former were ordered to the front; the later was mustered out at the recruiting rendezvous, not being required. The general recruits were mostly sent forward to the field as fast as recruited, to fill up old organizations. Since May last, one hundred and seventy-five (175) New York State Volunteer organizations have been mustered out of the United States service, paid off and discharged.

The orders of the War Department to mustering officers, require them to furnish one copy of all muster-out rolls to Adjutant Generals of States. But rolls are sometimes missent and occasionally lost in transit. The Adjutant General of the army has promised to supply official copies of the muster-out rolls of such commands as shall finally be found wanting, together with copies of the muster-out rolls of the first thirty-eight regiments, which have never been furnished. It is of the first importance that a muster and descriptive roll and a muster-out roll of every soldier from the State should be on file in the Adjutant General's office; in no other way can a correct and reliable history of the soldier be substantiated, the importance of which was not, during the early part of the war, considered, and consequently the attention to the matter that ought to have been bestowed, was, to some extent, wanting, and extraordinary effort now is required to supply deficiencies. Not until since the close of the war have any muster and descriptive rolls of drafted men and substitutes been supplied to State Adjutant Generals, and for a considerable period in 1864 muster and descriptive rolls of general recruits were withheld by mustering officers. On my accession to office, I found this condition of things existing, and on requesting that such rolls be forwarded to me by Provost Marshals, I received for answer that by their orders they were not bound to furnish them. An application to the War Department resulted in a direction to these mustering officers to furnish them.

In order to secure copies of rolls of drafted men and substitutes, for lack of clerical force in the offices of the division provost marshals, this Department has been obliged to employ clerks in the city of New York to copy such rolls in the office there, and will probably be obliged to do so here in Albany. Discharged and disabled soldiers have been employed temporarily for this work. When deficient rolls shall have been supplied, as they are likely to be within a brief period, there will be in the Adjutant General's office a collection of rolls, enlistments and discharges by muster-out and by order, relating to the volunteer service during the war, of nearly or quite one million. And in this connection I respectfully suggest the great necessity that some provision be made to give the Adjutant General's Department sufficient, safe and convenient quarters. At present, from necessity, the office is in three distinct and different localities. Muster-rolls are piled up on floors, on tables and mantels, for the want of room to put them; and many of them in a building not only overcrowded but very unsafe. It is not sufficient to find storage room in a safe place for these rolls and papers, for they are being necessarily overhauled, examined, and certified from to the extent of hundreds daily on applications from the War Department, the Pension Department, the Surgeon General's office, the Pay Department, the Treasury Department; from supervisors of towns, war and bounty committees, individual soldiers, soldiers' widows; friends of soldiers from all parts of the world, consuls of foreign governments respecting soldiers of their respective nationalities, as well as from many other sources not necessary to enumerate. And these searches must go on for years. Unavoidably, from continued handling, rolls in a little time become badly worn and mutilated. My predecessor, General Sprague, two years ago commenced to copy the names from these rolls into books, with the view to facilitate searches, to preserve the original rolls, and in case of their loss by fire or otherwise, that such loss should not be irreparable, as well as to be able to deposit in the public offices and libraries in the State, copies as a medium of easy reference in the many cases in which it would be convenient or necessary to consult them. The proposition was approved by the Legislature, and an appropriation made for that object, but the number of copies authorized was found to be quite insufficient, and on General Sprague's suggestion, his excellency Governor Seymour authorized an additional number by contracting with the Argus office for the printing and binding,—the expense of which has been paid out of the last yearly appropriation for military purposes. The printing already done, however, includes but a certain number of copies of a part of the rolls. During my administration, I have continued the work of copying, with a view to the ultimate completion of the work, and I recommend that the Legislature, by general appropriation, provide for the expenses of this work, as a part of the necessary expenditures of the Adjutant General's Department. The several departments of the government at Washington, and foreign ministers and consuls; as well as different institutions of learning and public libraries throughout the United States, have made application to be supplied with copies of this work. In our volunteer army every civilized nationality was, to a greater or less degree, represented; hence the interest manifested by representatives of the different governments in the work.

Since the 1st of January, 1865, the number of commissions issued to officers of the volunteer force from this State is 4,414.

The last Legislature, after the capture of Fort Fisher, by a vote of thanks, complimented the troops from this State who participated in that attack, and therein complimented "Major C. E. Pearce" as commanding a detachment of the 16th New York Volunteer Artillery. On the representations of Major-General A. H. Terry, commanding the attacking force, and Brevet Brig. Gen. Joseph C. Abbott, commanding brigade, that the officer in command of that detachment of artillery, was Major "F. W. Prince," and not "Major C. E. Pearce," I respectfully suggest that the attention of the present Legislature be called to the fact, and that the record be amended accordingly.

The annexed abstracts, under appropriate headings, will show: The number, designation, and strength of New York regiments, and separate commands, mustered out since the surrender of the Rebel armies.

The number and designation of New York regiments and separate commands still in service.

All changes by consolidation.

A complete roster of the volunteer force at date of their discharge from the records of this Department, without reference to whether officers promoted were actually mustered into the United States service.

The number and designation of regiments and separate commands of which muster-out-rolls have been received.

By order of the Secretary of War, the colors and battle-flags of all regiments discharged from the service, were required to be turned in to the Adjutant Generals of States. The abstracts annexed will show the number and designation of the colors and flags received by this Department, and which have been delivered to the Chief of the Bureau of Military Record for safe-keeping.

The last Legislature provided by joint resolution, for a formal turning over of these mementoes of the War to your Excellency, and the time ultimately fixed upon for this ceremony was the 4th of July; on which occasion, under the auspices of the Young Men's Association of Albany, in connection with the National Guard of the 9th Brigade, commanded by General John E. Rathbone, and such of the returned volunteers as were then awaiting payment and discharge at this depot, in the presence of Lieutenant-General Grant, and nearly twenty other distinguished general officers of the army, and one of the largest assemblages of people ever congregated in this city, these memorials of the valor and patriotism of our volunteers were formally displayed and delivered to your Excellency as Commander-in-Chief, to be deposited in the archives of the State. The presentation address on the occasion was delivered by Major General Butterfield, U. S. Vols., and the oration by the Rev. Dr. Chapin.

Appended hereto will be found a synopsis, showing the number of men furnished from this State during the war, under the several calls for volunteers, from which it will be seen that the number for which the State received credit is 457,456. The number not credited, having been mustered for a less period than three months, is 15,987, making a total of 473,443. The Secretary of War, in his report to Congress, giving the number of men credited to New York as 455, 568, omits the emergency men not credited, and credits, for enlistments in insurrectionary States, allowed since the last call, to the number of 1,888.

The last Legislature, by concurrent resolution, authorized your Excellency, by way of acknowledging, in a suitable manner, the personal sacrifices and heroic deeds of the officers and soldiers of this State, serving in the army of the Union to suppress the rebellion, to confer commissions with brevet rank in any of the several grades authorized to be filled by Governors of States, upon such of the officers and soldiers of the volunteer force from this State, as should have distinguished themselves by gallantry in battle, or meritorious and honorable conduct. Several hundred applications and recommendations have been received, and filed in the Department of the Commander-in-Chief, and doubtless more will be. Pursuant to recommendations, commissions conferring rank in the several grades have been already issued by your Excellency, to the number of two hundred and fifteen (215). Remaining applications and recommendations, I am assured by your Excellency, will receive your consideration and action as early as possible.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

During the past year no considerable additions have been made to the number of reported organizations of the National Guard existing prior to December 31st, 1864. The force was then reported as follows, viz:

- 108 regiments,
- 2 independent batteries,
- 5 battalions,

comprising in the aggregate the reported number of 45,910 officers and men.

The whole number then armed and equipped was 14,131.

The organizations now existing are as follows, viz:

- 108 regiments of infantry.
- 3 regiments of cavalry.
- 1 regiment of artillery.
- 2 battalions of artillery.
- 5 batteries of artillery.
- 1 battalion of infantry.
- 1 battalion of cavalry.

The present aggregate strength is 50,246, of whom 28,000, in round numbers, are uniformed and equipped.

I am induced to believe that the inspection returns for 1864 are entitled to less credit for accuracy, in respect to the number of men, than those of the current year. This belief is supported by the fact that very considerable accessions of volunteers to old organizations have been made during the year, mostly veteran soldiers returned from the war, and that four new regiments have been organized, reporting an aggregate number of about 2,000 men, while the difference in the total of the last and the present year is but 4,336. Of the regiments organized prior to 1865, the 92d and the 102d have been disbanded and organized into an independent battalion; and the 93d and 95th consolidated. There are still several of the regiments organized in 1863 that will have to be disbanded and reorganized, in respect to which action has been deferred until more certain reports can be obtained. I make no hesitation in affirming that at least one hundred (100) of the one hundred and twelve organized regiments are alike respectable in numbers, in the general character of the mass of their officers, and in their drill and efficiency, so far as they have been armed and equipped; and that at least sixty of them in their materiel are superior to the average of the volunteer regiments sent to the field during the late war; and upon any contingency that should call them into service in defence of their State or country, would add to the already proud record of the New York citizen soldiery.

It will be seen that during the past year fourteen thousand (14,000) men have been armed and uniformed, leaving of the present organized force about twenty-two thousand (22,000) yet to be provided for, and aside from a limited number of inferior arms, no provision for their equipment has been made.

The last Legislature appropriated for uniforming and arming the National Guard the sum of five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000), of which sum there has been actually expended for that object two hundred and sixteen thousand, six hundred and fifty-one dollars ($216,651), as follows, viz:

For the purchase of arms	$5,040 00
For the purchase of accoutrements	58,321 00
For the purchase of uniforms	153,290 00
Making a total of	$216,651 00

I am thus particular in stating these items of expenditure under that appropriation, inasmuch as I see by the late report of the outgoing Comptroller that he has made the following official statement:

"The expenses of the National Guard have increased rapidly, and show no signs of diminution. The payments on that account during the last fiscal year reached the unprecedented sum of $643,358.72, being full one-half as much as the entire amount of the other ordinary expenses of the State government. If the Legislature shall "be of opinion that a continuance of these expenditures, on so large

 "a scale, is necessary, it will of course take care to provide the means "for meeting them. The estimates embrace only $200,000 for that "purpose, which is, I believe, more than four times the amount
 "usually required for the militia in any one year prior to the passage "of the act of 1862."

It will be seen that this statement of expenditures by the Comptroller commences on the 1st of October, 1864, and ends on October 1st, 1865, the period of the fiscal year. The report shows that this sum of $643,358.72 embraces not only all expenditures for the National Guard, but the aggregate of all expenses chargeable to the military fund, including the Department of the Commander-in-Chief and general staff departments.

The general appropriations for military purposes since 1861 have been as follows:

By chapter 477, Laws of 1862	-----	$300,000
do 135, do 1863	-----	200,000
do 334, do 1864	-----	350,000
do 612, do 1865	-----	500,000
Total	-----	$1,350,000

I have no data before me going to show how much of these several appropriations, prior to 1865, were actually expended, but this amount would seem to indicate that the people and the Legislature have entertained views quite dissimilar to those expressed by Mr. Robinson respecting the Military Departments of the State. This last exhibition of his well known hostility to the National Guard will create no surprise, and the Legislature, to whom he refers, the question whether in effect the military of the State shall be disorganized or sustained, will pronounce upon the question as they may be advised. His reference to the economy of the old-time Militia as a criterion for present expenditures for military purposes, is about as appropriate as a recommendation to the travelling public and the commercial interests of the country, to abandon the more modern means of conveyance and return to stage-coaches.

But for the refusal of the Comptroller to approve of any further expenditure in the purchase of arms or clothing, from five thousand (5,000) to seven thousand (7,000) more men would have been provided with equipments under the appropriation of 1865. Above $275,000 of that appropriation is still unexpended. On learning of the position which the Comptroller had taken in the early summer, and to save as far as possible the disappointment of the organizations that had confidently relied on securing the full advantages of the provision made for them by the last Legislature, the Quartermaster

General was, by your Excellency's direction, ordered to procure some necessary alterations to some United States' clothing which had been before then turned over to the State, and to issue the same to such regiments as should, all things considered, be most in need of uniforms. At the same time application was made to the General Government for twelve thousand (12,000) Springfield rifles, which was granted, and the arms turned over to the State. The orders on the Quartermaster General for uniforms and on the Commissary General of Ordnance for arms, are at the present time in excess of all equipment that could be supplied, some eight thousand (8,000.)

I estimate that another appropriation of $500,000, added to the still unexpended balance of last year's appropriation, would secure the equipment of about sixteen thousand (16,000) men—maintaining the organized force at about fifty thousand (50,000)—and would leave but a small margin unprovided for. It would seem to be questionable economy to dole out annually small sums for the purchase of equipments, thereby providing for a few hundreds of several thousand men, all alike entitled, and all equally desirous that the proper provision should be made for them. A militia organization without uniforms and without arms, is at most but a partial census of a particular locality, exists merely on paper, and for all purposes for which a military force is required, might as well be a caucus assemblage or a delegation to a mass meeting.

At the commencement of the National Guard organizations, the arms owned by the State were generally the Springfield and Harper's Ferry patterns of altered muskets, and the supply was but limited. The exigencies of the late war threw upon the markets arms of all kinds, domestic and foreign, good, indifferent and worthless. Manufacturers of arms greatly increased in numbers, with large capital, and the introduction of many useful inventions and improvements. The State, in its purchases of arms during the period of the war, seems to have taken of the three designated kinds in about equal proportions. The arms now used by the National Guard are largely of the Springfield rifle, improved pattern, with some Enfield and some Austrian rifles. The Springfield rifle is well approved to be the most effective muzzle-loading military small arm in use. Without intending to pronounce on the character of the best Enfield or Austrian rifles, I undertake to say that those now owned by the State are very indifferent. I have a fixed opinion, that at no very distant day breech-loading and repeating rifles will supersede all muzzle-loading small arms in use for military purposes, not only for their superior effectiveness, but from considerations connected with the necessary movements of troops in loading and firing.

The annual course of military instruction, ordered to be prescribed by the Adjutant General, which has been neglected during the war, will be resumed, necessary orders therefor having been made.

In case the Legislature shall make such provision for the National Guard as will warrant it, I respectfully recommend to your Excellency to authorize a change of the armament of, say, five battalions or regiments of infantry, to sharpshooters, to be armed with breech-loading or repeating rifles.

I have the honor, also, to recommend a general encampment, by divisions, to be held in the months of August and September.

Experience has suggested some needful amendments to the militia law. I notice more especially the following, viz:

In the manner of taking and returning an enrollment of the reserve militia;

The manner of collecting fines;

The tenure of military office;

The division of duties of the staff departments;

An amendment to section 175 so as to provide a just compensation to chiefs of the staff departments in time of peace.

The number of commissions issued in the Department of the National Guard during the year is one thousand four hundred and sixty-one (1,461).

During the last winter and early spring, frequent rumors and reports of threatened raids, by rebel refugees in Canada, on our northern border were rife, and upon the recommendation of the Commanding General of the Department of the East, small bodies of several regiments of the National Guard were for a short time ordered on duty, as follows, viz:

A portion of the 33d regiment at Ogdensburgh.

“ “ 34th “ Malone.

“ “ 48th “ Oswego.

“ “ 54th “ Rochester Arsenal.

“ “ 65th and 74th Buffalo Arsenal.

With the abstracts annexed will be found a complete roster of the several regiments and separate commands of the National Guard.

The Department of the National Guard employs an Acting Assistant Adjutant General, three clerks and a messenger only, of the force in the Adjutant General's office, and aside from the expense of printing the necessary blanks, the Militia Law and the Regulations,—with which, by the laws of the State, the militia are to be provided by the Adjutant General—is less expensive than at any period since the organization of the National Guard, while the actual labor in that Department alone is five times as great as the whole labor of the Adjutant General's Department at the breaking out of the war.

The Quartermaster General has furnished a return of orders received by him for issues of uniforms and accouterments, and the amount issued. The Commissary General of Ordnance has made a like return in respect to ordnance and camp and garrison equipage. These returns are hereto appended.

I do not recommend any material change of organization of the body of the militia, nor more legislation respecting it than seems to be really necessary to render the present system more perfect. It is not impossible that Congress may, in the exercise of its prerogative, provide for the reorganization of the whole body of the militia of the several States, in order to establish a greater uniformity; and more nearly assimilate it to the organization of the regular army.

Such inspection, reports and returns of general officers as have been received are herewith submitted and embraced in the annexed abstracts and returns. No questions are presented by these returns that I desire to allude to, except in the case of Major General H. B. Duryea, who somewhat elaborately reviews the question he raises about tactics. It will be seen that he insists that "Casey's Tactics" are the standard after which the National Guard shall be instructed; that they are made so by Act of Congress, because they are the recognized standard by order of the War Department. While I do not at all question the correctness of the proposition stated by General Duryea, that the law of Congress is in all respects binding on the militia organized in pursuance of its provisions, I am not prepared to assent to his conclusion, that permitting any use of what are known as "Morris' Tactics" by the National Guard; or any part of them, is a violation of the law of Congress. At the commencement of the late war "Scott's Tactics" was the standard for infantry, and "Poinsett's" for cavalry, as the orders of the War Department then existed. In 1861, "Casey's Tactics" was substituted for Scott for infantry, and Philip St. George Cooke's for Poinsett's, for cavalry. Notwithstanding the orders of the War Department, each of these "systems," as they are commonly designated, have been in use by the army during the war. The main body of the infantry used Casey's Tactics after 1861, and the main body of the cavalry, Poinsett's Tactics of 1841, and very many movements were introduced and systematically practiced by all arms of the service, that were not expressly laid down in any tactics approved by order of the War Department. My construction of the congressional provision on the subject of uniformity of system is much broader and more comprehensive than that of General Duryea, while I have given to the First Division permission to use Morris' Tactics, I have not abolished Casey's. Both works embrace substantially the same general system. A soldier who understands one, will very readily comprehend the other. The execution of movements, as directed by Morris, very nearly conforms to the movements actually generally practiced by the army during the war, especially in timbered and broken country. Formations can be more rapidly made and changed, and a greater effectiveness of force secured in less time. I see no reason to doubt the propriety or legality of my action in the premises.

THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

The Constitution of the United States grants to Congress the authority, to provide for arming, organizing and disciplining the Militia. Under this provision, Congress, by an act entitled "An act more effectually to provide for the National defence by establishing a uniform Militia throughout the United States," approved May 8th, 1792, amongst other things, provided, "That there shall be an Adjutant General appointed in each State, whose duty it shall be to distribute all orders from the Commander-in-Chief of the State, to attend all public reviews when the Commander-in-Chief shall review the Militia; to obey all orders from him relative to carrying into execution and perfecting the system of military discipline; to furnish blank forms of different returns that may be required; and to explain the principles on which they are made; to receive from the several officers of the different corps returns of the Militia under their command, reporting the actual situation of arms, accoutrements, and ammunition, their delinquencies, and every other thing which relates to the general advancement of good order and discipline; all which the several officers of divisions, brigades, regiments and battalions, are required to make in the usual manner, so that the said Adjutant General may be furnished therewith, from all which returns he shall make proper abstracts, and lay the same annually before the Commander-in-Chief of the State." It is by the said act, further provided, "That within one year after the passage of the act, the Militia of the respective States shall be arranged into divisions, brigades, regiments, battalions and companies, as the Legislature of each State shall direct; and each division, brigade and regiment, shall be numbered at the formation thereof, and a record made in the Adjutant General's office."

By the act of Congress entitled "An act, in addition to an act entitled an act, to more effectually provide for the National defence by establishing an uniform Militia throughout the United States," It is further provided, that it shall be the duty of the Adjutant General in each State, to make returns of the Militia of the State to which he belongs, with their arms, accoutrements and ammunition, agreeable to the directions of the acts to which this is an addition, to the President of the United States annually, on or "before the first Monday in January in each year; and it shall be the duty of the Secretary of War, from time to time, to give such directions to the Adjutant Generals of Militia, as shall in his opinion be necessary, to produce an uniformity in said returns."

This act also provides for the appointment of a Quartermaster General in each State.

Independent then of all State legislation, which can be but affirmatory of the congressional enactments, the Adjutant General's Department in each State is the one of military record, and the Adjutant General is the constituted military medium between the State forces and the War Department. State legislation in the matter of making the suitable and necessary provisions for a substantial compliance with the acts of Congress, relating to the organization and equipment of the militia, may add to his duties, but such authority as Congress, in the assertion of its constitutional prerogative has conferred on him and his Department, cannot be abridged.

Disclaiming any intention to be querulous or officious, or in the least degree wanting in a proper respect for the State Legislature and its enactments, I feel impelled to call attention to the enactments relating to the establishment of what was at the beginning designated "The Bureau of Military Statistics," but which is now known as the "Bureau of Military Record." The original design and office of this "Bureau" purported to be for the chief thing, to collect and preserve in a permanent form an authentic sketch of every person from this State who has volunteered into the service of the General Government since the 15th day of April, 1861; and, likewise, a record of the service of the several regiments, which shall include an account of their organization and subsequent history and operations, together with an account of the aid afforded by the several towns and counties of this State; and that an abstract of such certificates should accompany the report of the Adjutant General. Such was the substance of the act of 1863. By the act of 1864, the enactment of 1863 was repealed, and it was declared "That the objects of the said Bureau are, to collect and preserve in a permanent form the name of every person who has volunteered or been mustered, or who may hereafter volunteer or be mustered into the service of the General Government since April 15, 1861; and the personal history of such person while in such service, so far as the same can be ascertained; a record of the service of the several regiments, including an account of their organization and subsequent history; and also an account of the aid afforded by the several towns, cities and counties of the State." And the term of office of the Chief of the bureau, was extended to the 1st of June, 1866. This law further provides, that the books, records and other property of the State in the bureau, should be open to free inspection and use, at all reasonable hours; that the Chief have a seal of office, and have authority to authenticate, by sealed certificate, copies of documents and other papers recorded or on file in his bureau, and that such certified copies should be prima facie evidence; that he might charge five cents per folio for copies of papers, to persons in the military or naval service, and ten cents per folio to private persons, except where copies of papers should be required by non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, no charge should be made for one copy; directing the Chief to invite the co-operation of common councils, and other officials of cities, the supervisors of towns and boards of supervisors of counties, and other local authorities in the work of collecting statistics; granting an appropriation; making some other unnecessary provisions about issuing new colors for old ones to regiments of volunteers or militia; and directing an annual report to be made by the Chief to the Legislature.

By the act of 1865, the Legislature changed the name of the bureau to that of the "Bureau of Military Record," and authorized the establishment, by the Chief of the bureau, of an "Auxiliary Bureau" in every county of the State, specifying the conditions of organization; making official reporting officers of town clerks, supervisors, county treasurers, and mayors and common councils of cities; and absolutely requiring these officers to furnish full and complete records of the names of all soldiers and officers who composed the quota of their respective municipal localities, and a statement of moneys raised by tax and loans, and the amount expended for every purpose connected with the war, classified by years and by objects, together with particulars about loans, entitling all these officers to a reasonable compensation for their services and expenses while in the performance of such duties, to be a charge against their respective towns, counties and cities, in the same manner as other town, county and city charges; re-enacting the unnecessary (if not absurd) provision about exchanging new colors for old ones, and making an annual appropriation to defray the expenses of the bureau. Another enactment by the same Legislature was made, entitled "An act to provide a suitable repository for the records of the war, and for other purposes." It commences by naming your Excellency and the Lieutenant Governor, the Regents of the University, seven Ex-Governors, and several other distinguished high officials and ex-officials, citizens of this State, as commissioners to provide "a suitable repository for the records of the war of the rebellion, and for the collection of the Bureau of Military Record;" the structure to be called the "Hall of Military Record." The act contemplates the erection of this structure to be secured by voluntary contributions, to the extent of $75,000, and $75,000 additional for that purpose is appropriated; establishes a system for membership by which contributors of $50 and upwards shall be entitled to an annual copy of the report of the bureau; provides for a plan of the building, which is to be built of marble, and so as to be fire proof, "to be arranged for the record of the military services of individuals, the services of the regiments, and the record of the part taken by towns, cities and counties in the war; also for the proper display of flags, trophies and other objects of military interest now belonging to the collection of the State, and hereafter to be received; and also for the preservation and convenient use of newspapers, books, documents, pamphlets and other papers belonging to the Bureau of Military Record, which shall be removed thereto, and which building when ready shall be occupied by the Bureau of Military Record." Such towns as contributed to the erection of the building "may deposit their record books and papers relating to the war in the archives of the building for safe keeping, and transcripts therefrom, under the seal of the bureau, shall be furnished upon application by the supervisor or town clerk, without costs, to such towns. Officers or soldiers may deposit their discharge papers, descriptive lists, muster-rolls, or company or regimental books and papers for safe keeping."

I have thus at considerable length reviewed this legislation in order to present the real questions involved, and to show that the original intention was that this bureau should be one of statistics merely. The "record" of military service, mentioned in the act of 1863, meant simply a "history." The Legislature of 1863 evidently did not very adequately comprehend the amount of labor actually involved in getting up such a history, to say nothing of the expense, for it evidently contemplated its completion (to include the then current period) within the year. The Chief of the Bureau, who is noted for his untiring industry and tenacity of purpose, evidently became well satisfied that the labor was one of great magnitude, if not impossible of any satisfactory performance. The Legislature of 1864 relieved him from even an attempted compliance with the law of the previous year, by repealing the same and making a new and broader enactment, and continuing his term of office till the 1st of June, 1866. This act makes the bureau an office of "record," provides for the authentication of copies to make them evidence, and in its general provisions evidently presupposes it will be the office where military records are to be kept; and the act of 1865 is in furtherance of that idea. Such evidently was the idea of the projector of these enactments, and the Legislature evidently accepted it as right and proper; and the people have been all along laboring under the impression that the "Bureau" was to be, if it was not already, the official military department of the State, where all military records were to be kept; the depository of rosters of regimental organizations, of enlistment papers, muster and descriptive rolls, muster-in and muster-out rolls, discharges, together with all official evidences of the military histories of individuals and organizations. But it is not now, and never can be without the authority of Congress, the depository of the military records of the State. It has not now and cannot have until Congress shall so provide, the custody of a single official roster, muster-roll, enlistment paper or other document which belongs to the official military records of the State.

There are at least two insuperable reasons why it cannot be such a depository: One of which is that so long, at least, as the present generation shall last, the official military records, papers, books and documents required to be kept, and which in any wise affect individual soldiers, or military organizations of this State that participated in the late war, will necessarily have to be searched and certified to from daily by the Adjutant General, requiring at present for that purpose alone the constant labors of over twenty assistants and clerks; and another is that such searches can only be prosecuted by having ready access to and convenient arrangement of such records, with sufficient room in which to perform the required labor, and can only be certified by the officer (the Adjutant General or one of his assistants) having the actual custody of the originals. I could add to these reasons that the Adjutant General is directly responsible for the custody and safe keeping of these evidences which in many ways immediately concern no less than 475,000 men, their families, friends or representatives. He is the only officer of the State who can give a certificate on which to found applications for back pay, bounties and pensions, or that in any wise affect the military character or service of these men.

I would not, in any wise, undertake to depreciate the labors of the chief of this bureau. I know his public and private worth, and I appreciate fully his ardent and hopeful zeal in the establishment and building up of his bureau, but I would be wanting in duty to the Department under my charge, and to the interests of which I am for the time being the guardian, if I failed to notice this attempted innovation upon the rights of my office. While I am satisfied to have the Legislature appropriate and the people contribute as much money as they choose towards erecting public buildings, and gathering statistics to deposit in them, I may be allowed to suggest whether more historical data relating to and trophies of the war, are more important to be preserved than the veritable records which in and of themselves contain all the evidences that militarily or pecuniarily can affect the soldier who participated in it.

There can be no objection to the deposit in this bureau of mere mementoes and trophies of the war, including flags (though these actually belong in the Adjutant General's office), because these are not required to be examined, to be certified, or for any purpose produced as evidence. This bureau or department by law is required not only to be open to the public, but the "records, books and other property deposited therein are to be open to free inspection and use at all reasonable hours." This provision alone would furnish an insuperable objection to depositing "military records" there.

Dismissing this subject, I conclude this my report by observing that while I have found the duties of my Department unremitting, and its responsibilities such as to demand the exercise of a proper discretion and a careful appreciation, I have been intelligently and greatly assisted in the discharge of the duties immediately devolving on the chief of the Department by my intelligent and faithful assistant, Colonel John B. Stonehouse, and my chief clerk, Major Alfred H. Taylor. To my acting assistants in the several bureaus, I am greatly indebted. I have fully relied upon their intelligence, their industry and their generous confidence, and have not in any respect been disappointed. The work of the office is unremitting, and requires great care and the exercise of a good degree of intelligence, and I take pleasure in expressing my approval of the faithfulness and capacity displayed by the several clerks and employes in the Department.

To your Excellency I respectfully beg leave to tender my acknowledgments for the uniform indulgence with which you have received and approved my official acts, and for the uniform confidence you have generously reposed in me.

Respectfully submitted,

WM. IRVINE,

Adjutant General.

REPORTS OF DIVISION AND BRIGADE COMMANDERS AND BRIGADE INSPECTORS.

REPORT OF MAJOR GENERAL CHARLES W. SANDFORD, COMMANDING FIRST DIVISION NATIONAL GUARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 1ST DIVISION N. G. S. N. Y., }
NEW YORK, December 30, 1865. }

To Brig. Gen. WILLIAM IRVINE,

Adjutant General of the State of New York:

GENERAL: I have the honor to report, that during the year 1865, the force of the First Division has been materially reinforced by the return to its ranks of many officers and men who had been engaged in the service of the General Government during the war of the rebellion.

During the year 1865, there have been four Division parades.

On the sixth of March last, the Division paraded for the purpose of uniting with their fellow citizens in celebrating the capture of Fort McAllister, Savannah, Fort Sumter, Charleston, Fort Fisher, Wilmington and Columbia.

On the 25th of April, the Division had the melancholy duty of rendering funeral honors, and escorting through the city the remains of our late lamented and noble President, whose loss in the hour of victory the Nation deplored.

The usual Division parade of the Fourth of July was also attended by several regiments of returned volunteers; and on the 24th of November, a parade in commemoration of the evacuation of New York by the British army in 1783 was attended by Governor Fenton, who reviewed the division, accompanied by the general staff of the State, and who was pleased to express his gratification at the appearance and discipline of the troops.

At these several parades the division presented between nine and ten thousand men, fully uniformed, armed and equipped. The inspection returns, on file in your office, will furnish the details of the numbers and organization, as well as of the equipments, of the several regiments and brigades.

No special occurrences have taken place in the division which require notice.

In the months of February and March last, upon the occasion of the draft for the additional men required by the General Government, detachments, by request of the civil authorities, were held in readiness, at the armories of the division, to protect the public property, and to be prepared to suppress disturbances; but the proceedings passed off without any unusual excitement.

During the current year, I have been much gratified by the attention of the officers of the General Staff of the State to the wants, equipments and efficiency of the division; and I trust that suitable legislative provisions will not be wanting to enable them to continue and enlarge the supplies necessary for this branch of the public service.

The late war has demonstrated the necessity of a well organized militia, and the fatal error of neglecting in time of peace the discipline and equipment of its citizen soldiers, so as to be ready for all emergencies.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

CHAS. W. SANDFORD,

Major General.

REPORT OF MAJOR GENERAL H. B. DURYEA, COMMANDING SECOND DIVISION NATIONAL GUARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 2D DIVISION N. G. S. N. Y., }
BROOKLYN, November 26, 1865. }

Adjutant General IRWIN:

General—During the month of February of this year this division was called upon by the Commissioners of Metropolitan Police to furnish guards at the various armories within the counties of Kings, Queens and Westchester, during the process of drafting for the armies of the United States, and the necessary orders were issued to comply with the requisition of the Commissioners.

On the 10th of April, in pursuance of directions from General Headquarters, orders were issued for a parade of this division, to participate in the general rejoicing at the great victories which had been accomplished by our National armies, but the parade did not take place. The assassination of the President took place before the day of rejoicing arrived, and the country was filled with mourning.

On the 17th day of April orders were issued for the observance in this division of such acts of respect as were deemed appropriate (see copy General Orders No. 6, annexed); and when the remains of the President reached New York, the 5th and 11th brigades of this division, with the division staff and delegations of officers from other brigades in the division, under my command, (upon the suggestion of the Commander-in-Chief, and by invitation of Maj. General Sandford,) took part in the funeral parade in the city of New York.

The city of Brooklyn having determined to make the celebration of the 4th of July an occasion for "special rejoicing for the successful close of the terrific civil war of four years, which had established the national unity and freedom, and especially to welcome home on that day our brave soldiers, who had so nobly sustained the national honor and welfare," orders were issued by me directing a parade of the 5th and 11th brigades in Brooklyn on that day, and such parade was accordingly made.

The annual meeting of the general and field officers and division staff and brigade inspectors, was held this year as usual, and I took occasion in the orders for such meeting to insert this paragraph:

"The laws and regulations require that the tactics and discipline of the militia shall conform to the army of the United States, and the practice within this division of any system of tactics not conformable to those adopted by the United States for the several arms is expressly forbidden."

In taking this position I did not pretend to discuss the merits of any particular system. It was enough for me that Congress, in the exercise of its undoubted power, had determined that the regular army and the militia of the several States should be governed by the same systems of tactics and discipline, and that the wisdom of this legislation was too apparent to allow of a moment's doubt as to its commending itself to the approval of the military authorities. But as officers of the State military forces, of high rank, and whose opinions are entitled to much consideration, have introduced in their commands the system of tactics prepared by General Morris, it is proper that I should fortify my position by a more full recital of the laws and principles involved:

1. By the Constitution of the United States (section 8, subdivision 15,) Congress is vested with the power "to provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the militia, reserving to the States respectively the appointment of the officers and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress."

This Constitutional provision is definite and conclusive. Congress is to prescribe the system of discipline, and the States are to train according to the discipline prescribed by Congress. The "discipline" here spoken of includes "tactics," for the States are to train the militia by it, and training implies tactical practice. Congress has so understood the Constitutional provision and has enacted (Laws of 1820) as follows: "That the system of discipline and field exercise which is and shall be ordered to be observed by the regular army of the United States, in the different corps of infantry, artillery and riflemen, shall also be observed by the militia in the exercises and discipline of said corps, respectively, throughout the United States."

It thus appears that Congress has exercised its exclusive power, and this action is final.

2. Our State does not deny but affirms this power and action of Congress.

By the Laws of 1862 it is provided (section 25): "The organization of the National Guard shall conform to the provisions of the laws of the United States; and their system of discipline and exercise shall conform as nearly as may be to that of the army of the United States, as it now is or may be hereafter prescribed by Congress."

And the general regulations for the military forces of this State (paragraph 521) reaffirm this law in these words: "All manœuvres and forms of parade, not prescribed in the books of tactics adopted by the United States, or in these regulations, are expressly forbidden."

In applying these laws and regulations to the National Guard, it would seem that but one question could arise, viz: What systems are observed by the regular army for the several arms?

3. The propriety of having an uniform system of discipline and field exercise throughout the United States, is as clear as the law is explicit.

The militia of each State is part of a national force which may be called to act together and with the regular army. It is all important, therefore, that the force of each State and the regular army should be able to manœuvre by the same system, and that each should understand alike and be able to obey in the same manner any command given. This is impossible if different systems of tactics are used in different States, and these various from those used in the army. As in the recent war, each regiment in a brigade might come from a different State, and in a division, part might be regular and part volunteer forces.

It is apparent that all the forces in one arm should be able to move by one command, according to one system, to avoid a confusion which must insure defeat.

All military men must see this. The framers of our Constitution foresaw it, and provided against it; and Congress, in repeated acts to establish an uniform militia system throughout the United States, admits it in the very titles to their laws.

In our own State (though we contemplated no service outside of it) it is equally indispensable that but one system of instruction and practice should prevail for each arm. A regiment, composed of companies trained by diverse systems, would be a pandemonium; and regiments in a brigade, or brigades in a division, each observing different systems of tactics, would be incompetent of united action.

To insure unity of action in the field, each command given must be understood alike by the commanding officer and all his forces; and must be executed upon the same principles by all troops of the same arm.

This is a military axiom to which all the armies of Europe are now conformed, and which, in the introduction of Scott's tactics, was enforced by the positive prohibition of the practice of any other manœuvres by the infantry. Hardee's tactics allowed a different system for the light infantry from that pursued by the infantry; but to remove this deviation from correct practice, but one system for all the infantry, light and heavy, is contemplated by Casey's tactics.

Whether Morris' book is superior to Casey's, and should supplant it, is a matter for the General Government to determine. The two systems are not compatible, and cannot both be used at the same time by different parts of the same force; and it is not within the power of the State to introduce a system of its own, diverse from that of the General Government.

In concluding this report I desire most earnestly to call your attention to the importance of resuming during the coming year the course of instruction directed by our State regulations (see article instruction), to be propounded annually in the month of January. The pressure of the war engagements on the Adjutant General's department was a sufficient reason for the omission by yourself and your immediate predecessors to prescribe such course, while the war continued; but as the rebellion is happily ended, I hope to witness a return to the practice existing in this State before the war. The value of the courses of instruction prescribed from 1856 to 1860 cannot be over estimated. A certain and definite progress, if made each year and continued for several years, cannot but produce important results, and I think I hazard nothing in saying that by no other method than that prescribed by our regulations can general and continuous advancement in tactical instruction and practice throughout the State be secured. Without it there may be improvement in particular commands under active officers, but experience has shown that the advance will be partial and local; while by the system laid down in our regulations all officers and men throughout the State are alike obliged to learn annually a specific and definite lesson equal to the average capacity of acquirement during such period. And what is thus learned theoretically is required to be practically exhibited, so that the exact measure of progress each year may be known and noted, and any delinquency at once ascertained and punished. And from year to year this equal and regular advance is stimulated, controlled and inspected from the common center, the general headquarters, and continued until a re-practice, or re-commencement of the lessons is ordered.

You will excuse, General, this discussion of topics which refer no less to the whole State than to my command; but I am so fully satisfied of the vital importance of a strict adherence to the authorized books of tactics for instruction and practice, and the immense damage done by any deviation therefrom; and also of the necessity of resuming the annual course of instruction, that I could not properly refrain from saying what I have done. And the more so as I was unanimously requested at our division meeting to lay these matters before you.

I am, General, yours very respectfully,

H. B. DURYEA,
Major General Commanding 2d Division N. G. S. N. Y.

HEADQUARTERS 2D DIVISION N. Y. S. N. G., }
BROOKLYN April 17, 1865. }

(General Orders, No. 6.)

The death of the President of the United States by assassination has been announced. The funeral ceremonies will take place on the 19th April inst., at Washington.

As a testimonial, in part, of the heartfelt, deep and abiding sorrow of this nation, for its great loss, and of respect for the high office held by the deceased, and his distinguished personal worth, it is ordered:

1st. That the national flag be displayed at half mast at all arsenals and armories within the division district, from this date, and until and including the 20th inst.; and it is requested that such arsenals and armories be suitably draped in mourning.

2d. Minute guns will be fired on Wednesday, the 19th inst., between twelve and one o'clock, at noon, in the city of Brooklyn, as shall be directed by special orders, and, as far as may be, at the headquarters of each brigade not in this city. Requisitions for ammunition will be made on the Commissary General.

3d. The colors and guidons of each regiment will be shrouded with crape for six months.

4th. All commissioned officers in the division will wear the usual badge of mourning on the left arm for six months.

By order of

Maj. Gen. H. B. DURYEA,
Commanding 2d Division.

REPORT OF MAJOR GENERAL S. S. BURNSIDE, COMMANDING FIFTH DIVISION NATIONAL GUARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 5TH DIVISION N. G. S. N. Y. }
ONEONTA, December 5, 1865. }

To Brig. Gen. WM. IRVINE, Adjutant General:

General—I have the honor to report that the annual division meeting of the officers for theoretical instruction was held on the 6th and 7th days of July last, at Richfield Springs, Otsego county. At said meeting a thorough course of theoretical and practical instruction was pursued, and resolutions adopted for a thorough and rigid system of discipline in the several regiments.

By the operation of the draft of 1864, and the exertions of the line officers, the organization in several regiments was complete, but composed of undisciplined men, officers, and privates. I therefore deemed it of the utmost importance that a rigid system of discipline and obedience to orders should be adopted, and the field officers who neglected to attend such annual division meeting were duly tried before the proper court martial for their delinquency, and punished for their neglect and disobedience of orders. This has set an example, and given the commandants of regiments confidence to enforce obedience in their respective commands.

I have assisted in the organization of companies and regiments, and co-operated with the commandants of brigades and regiments in perfecting their organizations.

I have attended, accompanied by my staff, the drills, inspections, and reviews of the following brigades and regiments during the past year:

The 13th brigade, under the command of Brig. Gen. E. A. Brown, held a parade for three consecutive days at the barracks near Fonda, Montgomery county, September 11th, 12th, and 13th. It was composed of the 26th regiment, Col. Timothy W. Miller, and the 40th regiment, Col. John Stewart.

The parade was conducted by Brig. Gen. Brown, according to the rules and regulations provided for the National Guard while under arms. The manual of arms and the evolution of the line were admirably executed. The review was one of the best I have witnessed in several years. The promptness of the officers in having their regiments ready for review and inspection at the precise time appointed, exhibited a discipline rarely to be found in our State troops. There were none in the ranks but what had been furnished with uniforms, leaving about half of each regiment out of the ranks for want of uniforms.

The large and respectable number of spectators that assembled to witness the review is evidence that the people highly appreciate the organization. The citizens of Fonda are entitled to the thanks of the members of the National Guard for the kindness and respect manifested towards them while on duty at this parade.

I attended, accompanied by my staff, the drill, inspection, and review of the 41st regiment 17th brigade, Col. Delos W. Dunbar, at Laurens, Otsego county, September 19th and 20th. The regiment was also reviewed by Brigadier General Z. C. Priest and staff. This regiment is not in uniform, except one company. It is composed of a fine body of men, and active and energetic officers. But to make a soldier he must be uniformed; it impresses him with a just pride for his position, and causes him to respect the service to which he is attached.

The colonel of this regiment took command under adverse circumstances. All was in a state of chaos, and no papers by which he could ascertain its true situation. He has by perseverance succeeded in the organization of his regiment, and it now presents ten companies well officered, and if uniformed would compare favorably with any other regiment of its date of organization.

I also attended, accompanied by my staff, the drills, inspections and reviews of the 19th brigade, under the command of Brig. Gen. Thomas F. Petrie. The brigade consisted of the 42d regiment, Col. James Whitford; 43d regiment, Col. George F. Graves; and 103d regiment, Col. L. A. Rhodes. The parade was held for three consecutive days in the beautiful village of Sherburne, Chenango county.

The regiments had no opportunity before for battalion drill, composed mostly of new officers and men entirely undisciplined, but through the indefatigable exertions of General Petrie, his officers and the commandants of regiments, these regiments soon presented a favorable appearance, and on the last day performed their duties with promptness and precision: the 42d regiment presented full ranks, but without uniform; the 43d and 103d regiments, of recent organizations, were in uniform, and the difference in discipline was clearly demonstrated. The 42d regiment is an old and respectable regiment and composed of excellent material, and should have been uniformed the first in the division. Where the fault lies I am unable to determine. Colonels Graves and Rhodes, for young officers, are entitled to the highest praise for the admirable manner in which they discharged their duties. The citizens of Sherburne generously opened their houses for the accommodation of officers and soldiers, and were hospitable and generous, and paid every respect to their citizen soldiers.

I was unable to review the 18th brigade, but from official reports learn that the brigade was reviewed by Brig. Gen. George E. Danforth, accompanied by his staff, and that the regiments in this brigade are in a prosperous condition except that some of the regiments are not yet uniformed. For the number of men organized in this division I refer you to the annexed report of Col. Uebel, division inspector, showing the number present at the reviews and inspections, and the number absent.

Allow me to suggest the importance of urging upon the Legislature to provide for fully uniforming and equipping the regiments in this division. It will greatly improve their appearance and usefulness. To discipline the National Guard, the true method is to provide each regiment with the necessary camp equipage which would be safely kept at their armories, and six or ten days each year spent at an encampment, where the rules and regulations governing the army can be applied, will do more to instruct and discipline the forces than all the parades put together. The officers and soldiers must learn the duties of the camp before they can be made efficient. There must now be a large amount of camp equipage, tents, &c., that is not in use, and if distributed to the several regiments would be appreciated and make our citizen soldier fit for duty.

It is a time when our Legislature should not be remiss in providing well for our State troops. When the lives and property of our citizens are daily exposed to ravages of bold and desperate combinations of wicked men who infest our cities, large towns, and along our thoroughfares, is it not the duty of our lawmakers to provide the means to protect the dearest interests of our citizens? The civil authorities are entirely inadequate to enforce the law against organized bands of robbers and murderers who are generally well armed for their nefarious purposes.

The National Guard, located in every town, can be made an efficient police force of the State, to aid the civil magistrate in promptly discharging his duties; and not only in this view should they be well provided for; but when we view the unsettled state of our foreign and domestic affairs of our nation, can any statesman hesitate for a moment to lend his influence to perfect a military system for the Empire State and Nation that will be equal to all emergencies?

To the Commander-in-Chief, and his several staff departments, we are indebted for their energetic co-operation, and had the Legislature made a sufficient appropriation every regiment would have been fully, uniformed and equipped.

And, in behalf of the division under my command, I tender the thanks of the division to the Commander-in-Chief and his departments, for their uniform kindness and prompt attention to the requisitions made upon them.

In conclusion, I return my thanks to the commandants of brigades and regiments for their untiring exertions and for the sacrifices they have cheerfully made for the last year, in endeavoring to elevate the service and to make it serviceable.

To my personal staff I am under many obligations for their prompt obedience to orders, and especially to Col. Uebel, division inspector, for the time spent by him in perfecting the system and his prudent discharge of his laborious duties.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

I am, General, your obedient servant,

S. S. BURNSIDE,

Major General Commanding 5th Div., N. G. S. N. Y.

ONEONTA, December 1st, 1865.

REPORT OF COLONEL LOUIS BURGER, COMMANDING SECOND BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 2D BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y., }
 NEW YORK, December 16, 1865. }

Brigadier General WILLIAM IRVINE,

Adjutant General State of New York, Albany:

General—In compliance with paragraph 527 of the General Regulations, I have the honor to transmit hereby the reports of commandants of several regiments of this brigade.

During the leave of absence of Brigadier General Charles Yates, I have assumed command of the 2d brigade, as senior colonel, in pursuance of division special orders No. 26, dated October 20th, 1865.

No evolutions of the line were practiced by this brigade during the last year. The only practicable parade ground for such purposes is at East New York, Long Island, over six miles from this city.

There are no sufficient means of transportation to bring six or seven regiments out and back again on the same day, and remain on the ground a sufficient time for manœuvering.

A proper drill ground on New York Island is an imperative necessity for the instruction and efficiency of the city troops.

The parade and review on the 24th day of November has given evidence that all the several regiments comprising the 2d brigade are improving in discipline and increasing in numbers.

In conclusion I hereby respectfully suggest to have positive orders issued from general headquarters, after which system of tactics—either Casey's or Morris'—the infantry regiments ought to be exercised.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,

Col. LOUIS BURGER,

Commanding 2d Brigade N. G. S. N. Y.

Col. LOUIS BURGER, Commanding 2d Brigade, &c.:

Colonel—Pursuant to general order No. 22, I have the honor to report that this regiment has paraded five several times during the last year, to-wit: On the 6th March, in honor of the victories of the national arms; on the occasion of President Lincoln's obsequies; on the Fourth of July; at the annual inspection, and at the division review on the 24th ult.

In addition to this, one or more of the companies have on various occasions paraded at funerals and at the reception of returning regiments.

With the exception of two months, extending from the middle of July to the middle of September, each company has been drilled weekly in the school of the soldier, the school of the company, and the school of the battalion.

The commandant begs leave to add that his absence from the city, and the recent resignation of the adjutant, has prevented an earlier and more thorough compliance with orders.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant.

F. A. CONKLING,

Colonel Commanding 84th Regiment N. G. S. N. Y.

To Col. LOUIS BURGER, Commanding 2d Brigade N. G. S. N. Y.:

Colonel—Pursuant to section 527 of the General Regulations, I have the honor to report about the services and exercises of the 5th regiment N. G. S. N. Y. during the last year.

Battalion drills were held January 25th, February 23d, and March 27th, 1865, at the State arsenal, corner Thirty-fifth street and Seventh avenue.

Officers and non-commissioned officers' drills were held May 12th and August 25th, at the regimental armory, Lafayette Hall, and November 21st at the regimental armory, Metropolitan rooms, 156-160 Hester street.

The regiment paraded, in pursuance of division and brigade orders, on the following occasions: March 6th, 1865, celebration of the glorious achievements of the United States army; April 25th, funeral obsequies of A. Lincoln, late President of the United States; May 29th, inspection and drill; July 4th, parade; October 20th, annual inspection and review; November 24th, review before his Excellency, Governor Fenton.

The new company "K" was mustered into service December 11th, 1865, by the brigade inspector.

The regiment is improving and increasing in numbers, and is in want of 200 more uniforms, so as to reach the number of 800 men, as per original requisition.

The armory was transferred on May 1st, 1865, from Lafayette Hall to Metropolitan Rooms, 156-160 Hester street.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Major B. S. CHURCH,

Brigade Major and Inspector 2d Brigade N. G. S. N. Y.:

Sir—I have the honor to hand you below a report of drills, parades, and military manœuvres executed thereat to 1st inst., as required:

1st. Drill by wing, at State arsenal, January 12th and 13th. Manœuvres: formation; manual; loading and firing; close column by division on various divisions and deployments on same.

2d. Parade in honor of victories, March 4th, by division. Manœu-vres: formation; march in column; close in mass and deploy on head of column; break by left of companies to front into column and column in march.

3d. Funeral escort Brigadier General Winthrop, April 12th. Manœuvres: formation, column in route to residence of deceased, and funeral ceremonies, per regulation.

4th. Funeral escort President Lincoln's remains, by division. Manœuvres as at third parade.

5th. Parade for special inspection and muster, May 29th, Washington parade ground. Manœuvres: formation and inspection as per regulation.

6th. Parade Independence Day, July 4th, by division. Manœuvres: formation; march in column to place of formation division line; formation on right into line; break by left of companies to front and march in column of companies.

7th. Parade, inspection, and review by Inspector General Batcheler. Manœuvres: formation; inspection and muster per regulation; line re-formed and review; passed in common, quick and double-quick time before reviewing officer; closed in mass; on head of column formed divisions; again closed in mass, changed direction by right flank; deployed on first division, and terminated review; then marched in column through principal streets, returned to armory and dismissed.

8th. Drill by battalion, Washington parade ground. October 17. Manœuvres: formation; by right of companies to front; form line by file right; by right of companies to rear; form line by file left; by right of companies to rear into column; march in column, right in front, change direction, close column and deploy; by right of companies to rear; by the left flank march in column; form line by left flank; advance in line of battle; retire by right of companies; form line by file left; retire in line; advance by right of companies to front; countermarch and retire from line; march by the right flank; forward into line; change front to rear of left company; march by left flank; forward into line; change front to rear on right of company, and dismissal.

9th. Parade evacuation day, November 24th. Manœuvres: formation; review by his Excellency, the Commander-in-Chief; march in column and pass in review.

There have been held also eight drills of the officers of the regiment, for theoretical and practical instruction, at which the schools for the soldier and company were thoroughly explained and recited, and the school of the battalion well advanced. The change in the system of tactics I regard as highly beneficial—although of course causing a little confusion at first—and after trial practically, find that Morris' system leaves little to desire as a simple, comprehensive, and most easily learned and executed set of manœuvres, adapted to all exigencies of service.

Very respectfully, &c.,

Your obedient servant,

Col. LOUIS BURGER, Commanding 2d Brigade N. G. S. N. Y.:

Colonel—I have the honor to submit the following report of the different drills and exercises held by this command during the year ending November 1st, 1865:

Special inspection June 2d, 1865; regular inspection October 17th and 18th, 1865.

Regimental parades March 6th, April 25th, May 7th, and July 14th, 1865.

Four battalion drills; six officers' drills; seven non-commissioned officers' drills; twenty-one company drills, for each company; and eighteen times company guard duty.

I would also beg leave to state that the regiment have 480 uniforms and but 400 overcoats, leaving 80 men without overcoats. The regiment has not as yet received any knapsacks, haversacks, drums, non-commissioned officers' sashes or swords.

I am, Colonel, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

General—In compliance with brigade order No. 22, I herewith transmit statement of manœuvres and exercises practiced by this regiment during the year.

Officers' drills were held once in each month, from October to April, at which all of the officers including sergeants and corporals were required to attend. The drills commenced with the school of the soldier and ended with the school of the company.

In addition to the above the commissioned officers were drilled one evening in the sword exercises and passing in review.

There have been eight regimental drills and parades at which the regiment was thoroughly drilled and exercised in the school of the battalion.

I am, dear General, respectfully yours, &c.,

Lt. Col. C. W. BENTLEY, Act. A. A. G., S. N. Y., Albany:

Colonel—In reply to your letter of the 18th inst., in which Brig. Gen. Irvine desires to be informed about the choice of tactics, I would hereby respectfully express the following opinion:

As long as Casey's tactics are adopted by the United States authorities, I think the National Guard ought to be instructed in such; but Morris' tactics having the preference of a quicker mode in manœuvering troops, and being otherwise more condensed, I think it desirable that every officer of the National Guard should study and practice the same.

Enclosed I send report of Col. Conklin, commanding 84th regiment, which was delayed and did not reach me until to-day.

I remain, yours respectfully,

Col. LOUIS BURGER,
Commanding 2d Brigade.

REPORT OF BRIGADIER GENERAL JAMES RYDER, COMMANDING SEVENTH BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS SEVENTH BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y., }
SOUTH EAST, November 1st, 1865. }

Gen. WILLIAM IRVINE, Adjutant General S. N. Y.:

General—I have the honor herein to make the annual report of the 7th brigade, consisting of the 17th, 18th and 57th regiments infantry, N. G. S. N. Y., which organizations have been mostly completed within the past year. The 17th infantry has seven companies, all volunteers, and composed of a very respectable class of young men. The 18th infantry has four volunteer companies and six drafted companies, and presents a very creditable appearance, with a fair prospect of becoming a very excellent regiment, and proving that drafting may be done in the rural districts with success. The regiment is equipped in the new State uniform, chasseur jacket; the uniform giving much satisfaction to the command. The 57th infantry is composed entirely of drafted troops and had nine companies on the field at the annual inspection and review, which took place by regiment at Nyack, on the 23d of October last. But eight companies however were in uniform, and those in the altered United States uniforms which were the only ones that could be had at that time, but which Col. Haring was resolved to procure, if possible, to complete the organization this year.

Col. Haring has not had much tactical experience, but is a gentleman of large influence and perseverance, and has the resolution and pride in his command which look to making his command a credit to the country and the National Guard. Some of the officers are from the volunteer force of the General Government, and others who commenced to aid the formation, in the first place, are resigning to give place to more of the honored veterans. Since the parade I have the unpleasant duty of informing you of the death of Lieutenant Colonel Stephens, of this command.

The annual review of the 18th regiment was had on the 24th at Peekskill, at which nine companies attended in full uniform; the other company, "II." was not notified owing to the unexpected absence of the captain. Although some of the officers had not had experience in the field before, about twenty evolutions were performed under command of Col. Hyatt, an officer of great experience in the militia, and was creditable to the field officers and the command. The annual inspection was performed previously and mostly by companies.

The annual inspection of the 17th infantry, N. G. S. N. Y., was by companies and attended by the brigade staff.

The review took place on the 25th at the village of New Rochelle. The seven companies were present in the altered United States uniforms, with a good band, and performed several evolutions, the dress parade and review in a most excellent style, considering the disadvantages they suffer for facilities for regimental drill. Allow me here to intrude the remark that there was not a man in the entire command who was "under the influence of liquor" during the day. The colonel and lieutenant colonel are both officers of talent and ability, and the command promises great credit to the National Guard.

With some more encouragement from the State, in the way of uniforms, these regiments will become efficient and prepared for any service the country may require.

My acquaintance with the inhabitants of this brigade district is large, and I wish here to add that there is a growing disposition on the part of the people in favor of an active and efficient militia, and I take great pleasure further to add that the board of supervisors of Westchester county very nobly voted one hundred dollars to each company for armory rent; fifteen companies in all.

I have the honor to be, General,

Your obedient servant,

JAMES RYDER, Brig. Gen.

REPORT OF BRIGADIER GENERAL DARIUS ALLEN, COMMANDING TENTH BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 10TH BRIGADE, 3D DIV., N. G. S. N. Y. }
TROY, December 18th, 1865. }

Brig. Gen. WILLIAM IRVINE, Adj. Gen. State of New York:

General—In accordance with paragraph 527 of the General Regulations, I have the honor to report I have not received from the commandants of regiments of this brigade the reports contemplated in said paragraph, and therefore my report will be made from the personal knowledge which I have of the brigade, and from such orders, manoeuvres and exercises, as have been issued and practiced by me during the year, with such additional information as has been furnished me by Major Lawton, the brigade inspector, who is a very efficient officer.

The 10th brigade comprises five regiments, the 24th, 72d, 97th, the 30th and 111th. The 24th regiment, commanded by Col. Isaac McConihe, Jr., a very efficient officer, assisted by Lieut. Col. John J. Leroy and Major George T. Steenbergh, both excellent officers: Leroy being one of the best drilled officers in the State. This regiment has ten organized companies; Doring's full band, and Perkins' drum corps, numbering 16, attached, numbering in all about 850. Among the company officers are several veterans: Capts. Scott, Landon and Quaekenbush, together with many veteran privates. It is almost impossible to discriminate among the officers as they are all competent and try to excel each other; this regiment in numbers and discipline is second to no other in the State. It has about 750 Springfield muskets and equipments; 850 uniforms; two colors; two 6-pounders, with carriages and implements; and two 12-pound howitzers. This regiment has paraded several times during the year for drill and improvement, and upon funeral occasions, and was inspected and mustered on the 6th and 9th days October, 1865. Major Lawton and Col. Smith, from the Inspector General's office, conducted the inspection; Col. Smith is a good and experienced officer, being a veteran and having lost an arm in the volunteer service of his country.

The 72d regiment, commanded by Col. Nicholas S. Miller, Lieut. Col. Barnes and Major Howard. This regiment was principally organized during the present year; they have made but few parades, not being furnished with arms and equipments until quite late in the season; they have paraded once for inspection, and again by battalion on the 10th and 11th of October, 1865, for muster and inspection. They were inspected by Major Lawton of the 10th brigade; they inspected present and absent about 600 men; this regiment has about 500 Springfield muskets and equipments in good order; 400 uniforms; one regimental color; nine snare drums; it has ten organized companies. This regiment is comprised of a fine body of officers and privates, the officers all uniformed and equipped, and with proper encouragement from the State will make one of the best country regiments in the State. I would recommend that 200 more uniforms be furnished the regiment, and 100 additional muskets and equipments.

The 97th regiment, commanded by Col. Schuyler Greenman, is also a newly organized regiment, having been organized the present year. Col. Greenman, although but lately commissioned, has but few equals in the State. His lieutenant colonel, Wm. K. Hawks, has given but little attention to the regiment, for the reason that he has or is about to move from the regimental district. Major George W. Finch is a very able and efficient officer. This regiment has paraded several times by companies and battalion. The regiment paraded for muster and inspection on the 12th and 13th October last, five companies each day, and were inspected by W. H. Lawton, brigade inspector. There were in officers and privates, present and absent, 497. This regiment has ten companies, 500 Springfield muskets and equipments, one regimental color, and no drums. It is composed of first class material of officers and privates. The officers are all uniformed and equipped, and try to out-do each other, and are excelled in drill and discipline by but few older regiments. I would recommend that there should be issued to this regiment 200 more uniforms and ten snare drums.

The 30th regiment is commanded by Col. James Gibson, our present State Senator, and although lately elected, has every qualification for a first class officer. This regiment is an old organized regiment, and previous to the war was commanded by Col. John S. Crocker, who volunteered into the service, and was in command of the 93d regiment of New York State Volunteers. He was a meritorious and brave officer in war as in peace, and distinguished himself in both.

At the time he enlisted, and during the war, the officers and privates of the regiment mostly volunteered their services, which left it but a mere skeleton regiment. Since the war some of the officers and men have returned and rejoined the regiment. A draft has been had to fill up the regiment to a minimum number. Capt. Willson has lately been elected lieutenant colonel—there is a vacancy of major. This regiment has been ordered out but twice this year, and only by battalion, for the reason they had but few arms fit for service, and no equipments or uniforms. They were ordered for muster and inspection on the 19th and 20th of October last, and were inspected by Major Lawton, of the 10th brigade. They have ten organized companies, and inspected, in present and absent, about 400. This regiment, although comprised of as good material of officers and men as there is in the State, yet are somewhat discouraged, for the reason that they have not been furnished with the necessary arms and equipments. They have but 140 old muskets, and but few of them fit for service. I recommend that there be issued to this regiment 400 muskets and equipments, and 400 uniforms; and the old muskets unfit for service be returned.

The 111th regiment, commanded by Col. Lemon Barnes, Lieut. Col. Emerson E. Davis, and Major John M. Barrett. Col. Barnes is an old and experienced officer, having once commanded a Washington county regiment, which was at the time one of the best in the State. His lieutenant colonel and major are well qualified for the positions, and feel a great interest in the organization of the regiment. It has but lately been organized, and had no arms and equipments fit for service at the time of their inspection, which was had on the 17th and 18th of October, 1865. They were inspected by Major Lawton. There were, in present and absent, about 375 officers and privates. This regiment, like the 30th, are discouraged for the reason that they have had no arms and equipments furnished them. It has the material, in officers and men, to make a good regiment, and if properly encouraged will do so. It has eight organized companies. Since the inspection I understand the regiment has been furnished with 400 muskets and equipments. I recommend that it be furnished with 400 uniforms, ten snare drums, and one regimental color.

In addition to the parades mentioned of the 24th, 72d, and 97th regiments, the officers, non-commissioned officers, and musicians paraded for drill and improvement on the 24th day of October, 1865. The officers turned out in their full strength, and made a fine appearance; and in drill, all who witnessed it bear testimony to the handsome manner in which the movements were executed.

The undersigned, being in command, was unable to discriminate between the regiments except that the 24th, which was in command of Lieut. Col. Leroy, rather excelled the others.

The following evolutions (Casey's tactics and others) were executed at the parade: By the right of companies to the rear into column; to half distance close column; into line, face to the rear; change front, forward on first company; close column by division on first division, right in front; on first division deploy column; close column by division on fourth division, left in front; on fourth division deploy column; double column at half distance; on first division deploy column; close column by division on first division, first battalion right in front; by battalion in mass on first battalion deploy column; by battalion in mass on third battalion left in front into column; by battalion in mass on third battalion deploy column; by battalion in mass on second battalion right in front into column; line of battle on third battalion; by battalion in mass on second battalion deploy column.

The officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates of the 24th, 72d, and 97th regiments paraded for drill and review on the 25th of October, at the city of Troy, numbering as follows: the 24th, 700; 72d, 500; 97th, 400; and would have turned out stronger had they had more uniforms. The brigade was reviewed by Brig. Gen. Batcheller, Inspector General of the State, accompanied by Brig. Gen. Marvin, Paymaster General, Col. Smith, Assistant Inspector General, and brevet Major General Carr, late of the volunteer forces of the United States. Brevet Brigadier General Olmstead, U. S. Volunteers, was also one of the reviewing officers. Col. Bentley, Assistant Adjutant General, an efficient and able officer, to whom the military forces of the State are often indebted for much valuable aid and assistance, was also present. It was a source of gratification to myself, and doubly so to the officers and men of the brigade, to know that all those accomplished officers expressed themselves highly gratified with the appearance of the brigade, and complimented it by assurances that, taking into account the short time in which the brigade has had an effective organization, and the disadvantageous circumstances under which the review was made, its appearance was creditable, and showed evidence of a spirit of improvement and emulation which augured the very best results for the future. I may add that it is a source of gratification to the military forces of the State that the Governor, in selecting his staff, has shown so much discrimination and good judgment in calling around him only those who are well qualified by experience and thorough military knowledge to discharge the varied and responsible duties which devolve upon such positions.

Within the last five years an experience has been learned in the field which will be found of the highest value in securing in the future the efficiency and perfect organization of our State militia—which must, after all, prove the main reliance in times of danger and domestic insurrection. In this connection I do not deem it inappropriate to say that the valuable experience acquired by yourself, Gen. Batcheller, Gen. Merritt, Gen. Swain, and Gen. Marvin, in active field service—services ever to be remembered for the gallantry and meritoriousness which marked them—will prove of incalculable value in perfecting, completing, and securing the efficiency of the National Guard of the State. With such officers on the Governor's staff to assist in the work of infusing vigor and life into our State forces, all officers of the National Guard cannot but feel that their best interests will be carefully watched over, and that their efficiency will be certainly secured.

In conclusion, General, allow me to congratulate you that the country has again returned to peace, and that the swords lately raised to strike down rebellion are again returned to their scabbards. But as the militia will at all times be the main reliance of the country in time of war, the proverb becomes doubly applicable that it is our duty “in times of peace to prepare for war.” The duty of this preparation, so far as it rests with you, I am certain will be intelligently and vigorously performed; and I assure you that for myself, and the officers and men of my command, we shall take a soldier's pride in the prompt obedience of orders, and in making all effort in our power to assist you in that work.

DARIUS ALLEN,

Brigadier General Commanding 10th Brigade.

MIDDLEBURGH, December 20, 1865. }

Brigadier General WM. IRVINE, Adjutant General:

General—In pursuance of the regulations I have the honor to submit my annual report for 1865:

The regiments comprising this brigade were required by general order No. 22, from these headquarters, to appear for drill, discipline, parade, inspection, and review as follows:

1. The 108th regiment, Col. N. Wakefield, at Schoharie, on the 20th day of September. The regiment encamped on the fair grounds and remained four days, except those not in uniform, who were dismissed the second day. It is a newly organized regiment and made its first appearance on this occasion. The movements performed, and the drill in the manual were highly creditable. Inspector General Batcheller reviewed the regiment on the third day, and expressed himself gratified with their appearance and their proficiency in drill. Number present, 553; absent, 351.

2. The 83d regiment, Col. R. Furman, at Schenectady, on the 25th day of September. They paraded for two days. Number present, 361; absent, 277.

3. The 27th regiment, Col. James Oliver, at Andes, on the 2d day of October. Number present, 427; absent, 156.

4. The 100th regiment, Col. Wm. Martin, at Walton, on the 3d day of October. They were not in uniform. Number present, 341; absent, 189.

Accompanied by my staff I reviewed all the regiments, and it gives me pleasure to say that the material of this brigade is excellent; that its present position is highly gratifying; and that all that is required to give it a foremost place in the National Guard is to have the department furnish the uniforms for which requisitions have been made.

I am, General, yours respectfully,

G. E. DANFORTH,

Brigadier General Commanding 18th Brigade.

REPORT OF BRIGADIER GENERAL THOMAS F. PETRIE,

GUARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 19TH BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y., }
PETERBORO, December 21, 1865. }

Brigadier General Wm. IRVINE, Adjutant General S. N. Y.:

General—I have the honor to report to you the condition and strength of the 19th brigade N. G. S. N. Y., consisting of the 42d, 43d, 76th, 103d, and 105th regiments.

The entire strength of the brigade, in officers and men, is 3,018.

The following parades have been held for inspection and review, viz:

The 42d, 43d, and 103d regiments paraded at Sherburne, Chango county, October 2, 3, and 4, 1865. Major General Burnside and staff, and Lieutenant Colonel Higgins, Assistant Inspector General, were present. The parade and review was all that could be expected, this being the first brigade parade under the present organization.

The 76th regiment paraded at Cortland Sept. 30th and October 19th and 20th. The companies appeared in full numbers. Owing to the rain on each day the line was not formed, except on the last day put in line for dress parade before dismissing. The inspection was made by company, between showers, on the last day. This regiment is well officered and well organized. Lieutenant Colonel Higgins was present on each day.

The 105th regiment paraded for inspection at Canastota on the 13th day of September, 1865. I did not attend the parade. This regiment has but six company districts and eight companies. The brigade inspector reports the regiment in a prosperous condition, made up of good material, and bids fair to be a number one regiment. Col. C. B. Crouse is a young man of enterprising character, and nothing wanting save military experience.

The 19th brigade, under its present organization, when fully armed and uniformed, will not be second to any brigade in the State west of the city of New York.

I have the honor to remain,

Yours most respectfully,

THOMAS F. PETRIE,

Brigadier General.

REPORT OF MAJOR THEODORE F. PETRIE, BRIGADE INSPECTOR NINETEENTH BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

PETERBORO, November 30, 1865.

To the Adjutant General of the State of New York:

General—I have the honor to report the condition and the annual service of the 19th brigade, in the 5th division N. G. S. N. Y.

This brigade is composed of the 42d, 43d, 76th, 103d, and 105th regiments, commanded by Brigadier General Thomas F. Petrie, who may well be called the father of this brigade. With his long experience and untiring perseverance in military matters, he has at last brought his brigade to its present perfect organization.

The 42d, 43d, and 103d regiments were ordered to appear at the village of Sherburne, on the 3d and 4th days of October, for drill, inspection and review.

This parade was attended by Major General S. S. Burnside and staff, also by Lieutenant Colonel Higgins, Assistant Inspector General. General Burnside reviewed the brigade at 10 o'clock on the second day of the parade. The fine military appearance of the General and staff seemed to inspire the men, and the review was such that old soldiers might well be proud of it.

I inspected the 103d regiment on the 3d day of October. You will see by the enclosed report that the parade was well attended by this regiment. In selecting a colonel the regiment could not have done better than they did by electing Lewis A. Rhodes. He is both a soldier and a gentleman, and has selected a fine staff to assist him in the duties pertaining to his command.

At the inspection of the 43d regiment, on the 4th of October, I found it well drilled and under good discipline. By the within return you will see that this regiment was not behind in point of numbers, although a great many of the companies had to travel over 40 miles by private conveyance. Colonel Graves is just the man to command such a regiment, and has an able staff to assist him.

I omitted the inspection of the 42d regiment on this occasion for want of time. It is the largest regiment in the brigade. There were over 500 present at this parade. Although they were not uniformed, they made a fine appearance. I afterward inspected this regiment by calling two and three companies together at a time. I inspected companies A and B of this regiment at Brookfield, on the 25th of October. Major Hibbard was present and assisted in the inspection. There was a fine brass band in attendance, and altogether it was the nicest thing of the kind I have seen in my visits to different places for inspections this fall.

I availed myself of the hospitality offered by Major Hibbard, and came away with the conviction that Major Hibbard knows just how such things should be conducted to make it pleasant for all parties concerned.

The 105th regiment was ordered to Canastota on the 13th. It is composed of eight companies, mostly drafted. They had just received their arms, and turned out in good numbers and made a fine appearance. With Colonel Crouse for a commandant, I hope to see it by another year second to none in the brigade.

The 75th regiment was ordered to appear at Cortland on the 20th for inspection and review. General Petrie and Lieutenant Colonel Higgins, Assistant Inspector General, were present. There was quite a large attendance, notwithstanding it was a very rainy day. Inspected the regiment by companies, between the showers, and in the rain. The line was formed in the afternoon for dress parade. This regiment is second to none in the brigade. Colonel Lansing does not lack energy and has spent a great amount of time in organizing his regiment, but is amply rewarded by the fine military appearance of his officers and men.

All of which is respectfully submitted by

Your obedient servant,

THEODORE F. PETRIE, -
Brigade Inspector 19th Brigade.

REPORT OF BRIGADIER GENERAL JOHN A. GREEN, JR., COMMANDING TWENTY-FOURTH BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 24TH BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y., }
SYRACUSE, November 30, 1865. }

To Brig. Gen. WM. IRVINE, Adjutant General S. N. Y.:

Sir—I have the honor to submit the following report:

On the 6th day of May, general orders No. 3 was issued from these headquarters, directing company drills, weekly for each company, in the several regiments, until the 1st day of August thereafter, and semi-monthly until further orders. From and after the 19th day of June, as to companies A, E, G, and D, of the 75th regiment, this order was modified to require only monthly drills, and as to the remaining companies of this regiment, semi-monthly drills. And from and after the same day, the said order No. 3 was also modified as to the 88th regiment, so as to require monthly drills only. Also on and after the 27th day of June, said order was so modified, as to the 85th regiment, as to require thereafter only monthly drills; and at the same time the like modification was made of the drills required of the 1st battalion of cavalry attached to this brigade. Order No. 3, as modified, required that the companies should "assemble at 10 o'clock A. M. of the day, and continue drill for the space of four hours without adjournment," and that within "three days after each of such drills, the commandants of companies make and certify to, in a proper manner, a full return of all present and absent members," the names of each, and ordering that whenever it should appear that any company had less than the minimum present (thirty-two non-commissioned officers and privates) at any one of these drills, the regimental or battalion commandant should order such company to drill once in each week thereafter. All of these bodies of troops were enlisted from the rural districts, to whom it would have been extremely oppressive at that season of the year to enforce the original order. This order, as at first issued, and as subsequently modified, has been substantially complied with. The regiments of infantry and battalion of cavalry have each had not less than three battalion drills during the year.

In obedience to an order dated May 12th, 1865, issued through Brig. Gen. George E. Batcheller, Inspector General, an inspection by companies of the entire brigade was had during the months of May and June, as appears by my report under date June 14th, 1865, and now on file in the Inspector General's department, and to which I beg leave to refer you for a perfect detailed report of their condition.

In pursuance of general orders No. 5, from these headquarters, an inspection drill and review of all the forces composing this brigade was held, on the Messina Springs farm near this city, on the 25th and 26th days of August last. The troops provided themselves with two days rations, and on the night of the 25th bivouacked on the field. Invitations to witness the drill and review the brigade were forwarded to the Commander-in-Chief and staff, to the Lieut. Governor, to Major General Brown, commanding the division, the Mayor of this city and other distinguished gentlemen. A new form of dress parade having been previously submitted to you and by you approved, was on that occasion, for the first time within this State, used for this brigade. On the 26th the troops were inspected and reviewed by Lieut. Gov. Alvord, Inspector General Batcheller and Paymaster General Marvin of the Staff of the Commander-in-Chief, Col. Higgins of the Inspector General's, and Major C. W. Bentley of the Adjutant General's department. The review was witnessed by a large concourse of spectators, and many congratulations were expressed at the soldierly appearance and general proficiency of the forces, by all present. During these two days the brigade was practiced in fifteen different manœuvres or exercises. To the experience of Major Orrin Welch, general officer of the day, Lieut. Col. E. L. Walrath, Act. A. A. G., and to Major Cook, staff officer of the day, the latter two of whom had seen much actual service in the late war, the General commanding owes acknowledgment for valuable services which contributed largely to the success of the drill, parade and review. The policy of securing staff officers, and those to command regiments and companies, who have seen actual service and discipline in camp and field, is still adhered to whenever practicable, and to the full extent of my ability. This, together with the company, battalion and regimental drills, had by my orders, has contributed in no small degree to maintain the brigade in a high state of efficiency. Courts martial have been ordered and held in every regiment of this brigade for the trial of delinquents from all company, battalion or other drills and parades; and the fines imposed have been, or are being, collected and deposited with the treasurers of the counties of Onondaga and Oswego. In this connection it is proper for me to say that the action of the last Legislature in amending sections 225 and 226 of the Law of 1862, has made it impossible to collect all fines, and consequent demoralization to some extent must eventually ensue. In pursuance of special order No. 94, issued through your department, by order of the Commander-in-Chief, dated 7th March last, Col. Beckwith, commanding 48th regiment, detailed a force for duty on the frontier defense, to report to the mayor of the city of Oswego, which force was continued on duty so long as the peril lasted and until relieved by your orders.

For the strength of the forces composing the brigade you are respectfully referred to the new muster rolls filed in your department by the brigade inspector, Major A. G. Cook.

I beg leave to so far diverge from the ordinary routine of report, as to call the attention of your department to an act of the last Legislature which repealed the military exemption clause of the law of 1862. The members of the National Guard in the rural districts, especially the privates, who are generally poor in purse, think it very oppressive that they should be obliged to do the duty, which in order to have a disciplined force must be exacted from them, while they receive no exemption or remuneration therefor. I am reluctantly obliged to confess that the result of the repeal of those exemptions has caused quite a growing indifference or discontent, when called upon to pursue the needful drills. On the 10th day of June last, the Attorney General was addressed, as the law officer of the State, soliciting his opinion as to the validity and effect of such repeal, especially with reference to the men enlisted in these organizations prior to the repeal. He held that members of the National Guard enlisted prior thereto, were, notwithstanding the repeal, entitled to the exemption provided by law at the time of their enlistment, as a part of the contract. This right of exemption, nevertheless, has been wholly disregarded by the assessors, and further legislation seems to be required to secure it. I beg respectfully to call your attention, and that of the Commander-in-Chief, to the importance of recommending some suitable legislation in this respect. If it be expected or desired, to give efficiency to this arm of the public defense, at least the public faith pledged to the men at the time of their enlistment should be kept inviolate. It is respectfully suggested for the consideration of the Commander-in-Chief, that such suitable recommendation as may seem to him just to the National Guard, be communicated to the Legislature. It is submitted that either the lately repealed exemption, or some reasonable substitute therefor, is but a moderate and just inducement to laudable emulation and diligent efforts on the part of the citizen soldier to excellence in his unremunerative profession.

The sacrifice of revenue, while trifling to the State, was precious to the soldier as a guerdon of useful service. and with many operated as a powerful incentive to assume the military obligations to which the State holds and compels him.

I have the honor to be, General,

Yours very truly,

JNO. A. GREEN, Jr.,

Brigadier General Commanding.

REPORT OF MAJOR R. TAYLOR, BRIGADE INSPECTOR
FOURTH BRIGADE NATIONAL GUARD STATE OF NEW YORK.

November 20, 1865.

To Gen. W. IRVINE, Adjutant General, State of New York:

General—The following is a synopsis of the strength of the 4th brigade as developed at the recent annual inspection of its several regiments.

The 11th regiment, inspected on the 16th of October, appeared as follows:

									Pres.	Ab.
	Field officers, 3; staff, 2; non-com., 8.....								13
Co. A,	3 officers, 5 sergts., 4 corpls., 1 bug., 2 drum., 42 priv.								57	13
B,	3 do 5 do 3 do 1 do 2 do							47	61	11
C,	3 do 5 do 4 do 1 do 2 do							45	60	3
D,	3 do 5 do 4 do 1 do 2 do							39	54	9
E,	3 do 5 do 4 do 0 do 2 do							38	52	17
F,	3 do 5 do 4 do 1 do 2 do							38	53	19
G,	3 do 5 do 4 do 1 do 2 do							32	47	7
H,	2 do 5 do 4 do 0 do 1 do							34	46	15
I,	2 do 5 do 4 do 0 do 2 do							28	41	18
K,	3 do 4 do 3 do 1 do 2 do							28	41	11
								525	123

To which may be added, if thought desirable, 20—the number composing an excellent hired band; thus increasing the nominal but not the effective strength of the regiment. The absentees, mostly privates, number 123, which, added to the number present, gives 648 as the actual strength of the regiment.

This regiment never appeared to better advantage than on this occasion. The uniforms were new, the arms and equipments were in excellent condition, and everything conspired to render this the best muster this regiment has ever made. The drill room or armory of this regiment is entirely inadequate to its wants. Its one large room is only sufficiently capacious to drill one large company in, and there is only one room for company meetings, which must be shared by all the companies.

This should not be with a regiment of the age and strength of the 11th. It is entitled to greater consideration, and I recommend that some action be taken that will tend to an improvement in this particular.

The 69th regiment was inspected on the 17th of October, at Tompkins Square, with the following result as to numbers :

				Pres.	Ab.
Field,	3 ;	staff,	3 ;	non-com. staff,	7	18	6

					373	259

To which may be added a hired band of 24 pieces, if thought desirable, to swell the nominal strength of the regiment. The absentees, numbering two-thirds of those present, added, will give a total strength of 632. It is the opinion of the undersigned, that the number present at inspection is about the real strength of the regiment, and that the absentees are continued on the rolls from year to year without advantage to the regiment. The 69th has one of the best located armories in the division, and if the premises now occupied by the police-station could be added to those occupied by the regiment, it would be rendered at once attractive and convenient.

As at present arranged, the armory is not a safe depository for the property of the State, the access to it being easily entered. I understand it is the intention of the police department to remove the station now occupying a portion of Essex market. Should that be the case, it would be well for the proper military authority to take some action regarding these premises, to the end that the armory accommodations for this regiment might be improved. By removing the bell-tower which now disfigures the building, and the partition wall which now divides the drill room, it could be nearly doubled in size.

In 1864, 500 new Springfield muskets were issued to this regiment. At present but 370 of that issue can be found in the armory.

The practice of carrying home arms and accoutrements has proved a cause of loss; as well the occasional dismissal of a company, on returning from a funeral ceremony, at or near the quarters of the commandant, when the members would carry the arms and equipments home, each intending to return them to the armory. In this way it is possible some of the arms may have been lost. It would be well to make more stringent laws, positively prohibiting the carrying away from armories any property belonging to the State.

The next regiment in order of inspection was the 95th, on the 19th of October.

This regiment commenced its organization in 1863. After various vicissitudes, and with the consolidated companies of the 93d regiment, it presented itself for its first annual inspection with seven companies and an aggregate strength of 235.

The absentees were 229. This result cannot be attributable to the field officers, for they have worked most assiduously, devoting much time and expense in the hope of making the 95th a strong regiment. Under these circumstances, and the fact that nearly the whole of this command are of the same nationality of the 69th regiment, I most respectfully recommend the consolidation of this regiment with the 69th. Thus united it would make the 69th a strong regiment and give to it one of the best officers in the brigade as its commandant. This arrangement would prevent the disintegration and possible destruction of both regiments, the 69th having fallen off in its prestige as it has in its strength.

Under command of Col. Pinckney the 69th would regain its ancient reputation, and with the strength of the 95th added, it would become effective for any service that might be required.

The following shows the condition, as to numbers, of the 95th regiment on the 19th of October:

				Pres.	Ab.
Field,	3;	staff,	3;	non-com. staff,	4;
.....			10	2
Co. A,	1 officer...	5 sergts..	1 corp.. 18	privates

	2 do ...	1 do	47 do	..	50
* German.						234	228

To which may be added a hired band of 20 pieces if deemed desirable.

The consolidation I have recommended should not include Co. G, as that is a German company, and should be incorporated with a German regiment.

The next regiment inspected was the 22d, on the 26th of October. It consists now of only eight companies, and was in the following force:

						Pres.	Ab.
Field,	2;	staff, 6;	non-com. staff, 9		17	..
Co. A,	3 officers..	5 sergts..	5 corpls.	2 drums.	42 privates	57	..
	35 do	..	35
B,	3 officers..	5 sergts..	6 corpls.	2 drums.	85 do	101	..
	2 do	17 do	..	19
C,	3 officers..	5 sergts..	4 do	2 drums.	54 do	68	..
	14 do	..	14
D,	2 officers..	4 sergts..	5 corpls.	1 drum.	32 do	44	..
	1 do ..	1 do ..	1 do	16 do	..	19

	1 do	1 do	15 do	..	17
I,	3 do ..	3 sergts..	5 do	2 drums.	32 do	45	..
	1 do	9 do	..	10
						472	156

To this number may be added a most magnificent band of 40 pieces, if thought desirable to swell the number present. The band is the regimental band and plays for no other regiment as such—always provided the 22d pays them their price.

This is truly a noble regiment, on which the State can most confidently rely. With an age of less than four years, with only eight companies, it presented 472 effective officers and men. Of the 156 absentees, many are filling positions of trust and responsibility in the United States service. Their armory is in the same excellent condition as the regiment. As the regiment increased in strength it became necessary to obtain more arms, and some fifty short Austrian muskets were furnished. As these arms are so dissimilar to that originally furnished, I recommend the purchase of some 200 or 250 more of the original gun, the Austrian being clumsy, it is unwieldy in the hands of the younger, and particularly the short boys on the left, and tends to mar the appearance of the line wherever they are during the execution of any motions in the manual of arms.

The 79th regiment was inspected at its armory on the evening the 27th of October.

Only six companies were present, owing as the inspector informed, to a misunderstanding.

The six companies gave a strength of 234, as follows:

				Pres.
Co. A,	1 officer...	1 corp..	21 privates	23
	3 do	27 do	..
B,	3 officers..	4 sergts..	3 do	46 do	56 ..
	1 do	20 do	..	21
C,	1 officer...	1 do	1 drum..	31 do	34 ..
		19 do	..	19
E,	1 officer...	4 sergts..	28 do	33	..
	1 do ...		8 do	..	9
G,	2 do ...	4 sergts..	5 corps.	28 do	49 ..
	1 do ...	1 corp..	9 do	..	11
H,	2 do ...		37 do	39	..
	1 do ...		7 do	..	8
Field 1;	staff 2.....			3	..
do 1;	do 1.....			..	2
				237	100

Owing to a want of confidence amongst the officers, or some other unaccountable reason, this regiment has remained in a passive state for nearly two years. Urged by the inspector to a reconstruction, it has appeared almost impossible to excite the necessary animation, until quite recently, and now it is believed that, with the recollection of its ancestral hatred of tyranny, and the recent glorious record the regiment made in its battles for the maintenance of freedom, they have resolved that this inheritance and their recent glorious record shall not die, but shall be perpetuated by reconstruction and transmitted to the latest generation of Scotsmen.

Indeed the State itself should see to it, that a militia regiment like the 79th, that has fought so valiantly in so many battles, should never be allowed to decline for the want of the necessary means to preserve its organization.

This suggests the fact that this regiment has not been reimbursed for the uniforms worn by it to the field, and used up in the service. The uniforms were private property.

All of which is most respectfully submitted.

Your obedient servant,

R. TAYLOR,

Inspector to the Brigade.

NEW YORK, November 20, 1865.

REPORT OF MAJOR B. F. BAKER, BRIGADE INSPECTOR
NINTH BRIGADE THIRD DIVISION NATIONAL GUARD
STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 9TH BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y., }
November 29, 1865. }

Brig. Gen. WM. IRVINE, Adjutant General S. N. Y.:

Sir—I have the honor to enclose herewith the annual inspection return of this brigade, and to submit the following report of the general condition of the command:

The 9th brigade N. G. S. N. Y., commanded by Brigadier General John F. Rathbone, consists of four regiments of infantry (three complete organizations and one rapidly filling up to the required standard), one squadron of cavalry, and one battery of light artillery.

The 10th infantry, Lieutenant Colonel D. M. Woodhall commanding, has a proud record as the 177th N. Y. S. V., taking part in some of the most important actions in the southwest, and leaving many of its officers and men upon the field.

The 25th infantry, Colonel W. S. Church commanding, is an old militia organization of established reputation and excellent record. Twice since the breaking out of the rebellion has this regiment tendered its services to the Government and marched to the seat of war. During its term of service it assisted in erecting some of the best defensive works near Washington.

The 82d infantry, Colonel John McEwen commanding, is a comparatively new organization, but with a continuance of the zeal and industry hitherto manifested by its officers and men, it must soon attain a creditable point as to numbers and general military efficiency.

The 4th Assembly district regiment, of which three companies were ready for this annual inspection, is now rapidly organizing and will soon be up to the standard required to muster its field.

The squadron of cavalry, under command of Capt. Swarzman, show great promise of future usefulness and efficiency. Many of the men have seen service, and the squadron, when completely equipped, will be a decided addition to the brigade.

The light battery, under Capt. Pochin, consists largely of discharged veterans. They are even now well drilled, and could work their guns at once.

The organization of the 9th brigade, comprising as it does all the arms of the service, would render the command very effective as an independent corps, should its services be required. The appearance of the men is soldierly, and a high state of discipline prevails generally throughout the command.

A reference to the last annual inspection return will exhibit a rapid increase in numbers during the past year. While this is partly owing to the labors of officers and men, it is mostly due to the happy return of so many of the old members of the command who have been absent in the United States service during the war. A large number of the officers and men of the brigade belong to this class of returned volunteers, and the introduction of this veteran element into our State organizations is a presage of their future character and usefulness. The State may well thank its gallant sons, as well for their services in the field as for the graceful readiness with which they return to their old associations in the National Guard.

Early in May last orders were issued from brigade headquarters, prescribing the company and battalion drills to be held during the year. This order has been faithfully complied with in all the regiments, and with marked improvement, particularly in battalion movements.

During the past year, in addition to the parades made in accordance with orders from general headquarters at the funeral of the late S. D. Willard, Surgeon General, and upon the 4th of July, the duty was assigned to this brigade by the Commander-in-Chief, of acting as military escort at the funeral obsequies of our late lamented President, on the passage of his honored remains through the city of Albany. It is but due to the entire command to say that on that occasion the duty was performed in the most precise and careful manner, exhibiting the profound sorrow of officers and men, and eliciting commendation won from the distinguished soldiers who accompanied the President's remains through the city.

While there is thus much to commend in the command generally, there still remain serious faults to be corrected and avoided in the future. The inspection of company armories and books shows that only the most meager company records exist, and those not of the kind prescribed in regulations. In fact there are no company books proper to be found, and the same may be said of the different regimental headquarters. Company officers state that they have made frequent requisitions for company books, but without avail.

Thus the company records fail to furnish the information required at regimental and general headquarters, and company officers escape being held to a sufficiently strict accountability for State property in their charge.

Cases have occurred where the arms of the State have been loaned to persons in no way connected with the National Guard, and such arms have been returned in a damaged and unserviceable condition, in express violation of existing orders and regulations.

It is respectfully recommended that the attention of the Quartermaster General be called to the great want of uniforms in this brigade. The inspection return shows that in a command where there were 1,716 men present for duty, but 1,385 complete uniforms, exclusive of great coats, have been furnished. Company officers also state in this connection that they have made frequent requisitions, but have heard nothing further from them.

The column of remarks in the company rolls exhibits a certain misapprehension of duty on the part of company officers. Men are reported as expelled for absence from parades and other occasions of military duty. In this way many men are lost to the service of the State, while existing laws provide amply for the punishment of such offenses by fines or otherwise.

It is respectfully suggested that it would contribute to the efficiency of the troops generally if officers were instructed to present their commands for inspection furnished with knapsacks, canteens, and haversacks, parts of the equipments of the soldier second only in importance to arms and ammunition.

In conclusion, the brigade inspector begs leave to state that any delay that may have occurred in getting in his returns and reports is owing to the difficulty experienced in getting correct rolls from the companies. Some of the rolls had to be returned three or four times for corrections.

With great respect, General,

Your obedient servant,

B. F. BAKER,
Inspector 9th Brigade.

REPORT OF MAJOR W. H. LAWTON, BRIGADE INSPECTOR
TENTH BRIGADE THIRD DIVISION NATIONAL GUARD
STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 10TH BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y., }
Troy, November 15, 1865. }

WILLIAM IRVINE, Adjutant General:

General—In compliance with paragraph 670, general regulations and circulars No. 2 and 3, dated Inspector General's office, Albany, September 8th and 9th, I have the honor to forward herewith the following report of the operations and condition of this brigade, consisting of the 24th, 30th, 72d, 97th and 111th regiments, all doing duty as infantry. The 24th is commanded by Col. Isaac McConike, jr.; the regimental district consists of 1st Assembly district, Rensselaer county, city of Troy. This is undoubtedly one of the best drilled regiments in the militia service. Many of the line officers, a number of the staff, including Adjutant Moore, have been two or three years in the service of the United States. Doring's celebrated cornet band is attached to the 24th; also a good drum corps.

The field officers are entitled to great credit for the manner in which they have improved this organization. This regiment was ordered out for inspection and muster, five companies October 6th, and five companies on the 9th; all reported in large numbers, as you will see by the returns. All the arms, uniforms and equipments of non-commissioned officers and privates belong to the State, and were found in good condition. Col. Smith, the assistant, favored us with his presence and furnished us valuable information in regard to muster and inspection rolls. The regiment having had nine battalion drills and parades this year, we dispensed with drill and review on that occasion.

The 72d regiment, commanded by Col. Nicholas S. Miller, was ordered out for inspection, five companies at Poestenkill October 10th, and four companies at Schodack Centre on the 11th. I gave the Inspector General a detailed report of this regiment, after the special inspection under the order May 12th. The 400 muskets reported at that time have been changed for 600 new Springfield rifled muskets, and have been furnished 400 uniforms; the arms, uniforms and equipments were found in good condition. Gen'l Allen was present both at Poestenkill and Schodack, and gave them instruction in battalion drill.

The next regiment in order of inspection, was the 97th, which took place: five companies at Petersburg, October 12th, and five companies at Schaghticoke Point, October 13th, under command of Col. Schuyler Greenman, and was ably assisted by his field, staff and line officers. Much enthusiasm pervades the entire regiment, and if it continues, as I believe it will, I shall soon be able to report it as the strongest and best drilled regiment in the rural district. Since the inspection in the month of June, they have been furnished 300 uniforms and an additional supply of Springfield muskets and equipments; all are in good condition, and their discipline, so far as obedience is concerned, is excellent, except one or two companies. I would do injustice to my own feelings, and those of every officer of the regiment, if I failed to bear testimony to the efficiency and activity of Col. Greenman; he seems to have a distinct knowledge of the tactics and what he is doing. This regiment should be supplied with more uniforms. Gen. Allen was present on the 13th.

The 111th regiment, commanded by Col. Lemon Barnes, includes the northern Assembly district, Washington county. This regiment, with the exception of two or three companies, were drafted in 1863, and have never been ordered out until ordered out for inspection: four companies at Fort Ann, October 17th, and four companies at Whitehall on the 18th. The inspection returns have been transmitted to the Inspector General; they show the number present and absent. One company at Whitehall has been supplied with Enfield rifles and equipments; the balance exhibit no uniforms, arms or equipments. The Col. informs me the men are discouraged, having no uniforms or equipments, but they are the same material that fought our battles for the Union, and I have no doubt if they receive any encouragement from the State, they will make a good organization. The General commanding the brigade attended the inspection.

The 30th regimental district consists of the southern Assembly district, Washington county, now under command of Col. James Gibson, Col. Robertson having recently resigned. Col. Gibson has for a long time served as lieutenant colonel, and his promotion was a reward for past services.

This regiment was ordered to assemble for inspection and muster, five companies at Union Village on the 19th of October, and five companies at Salem on the 20th. The weather on the mornings of the 19th and 20th being stormy, undoubtedly had an unfavorable effect on the numerical number present at inspection, as the companies composing this regiment, like those of the 72d, 97th and 111th, are miles apart, and it is, even under the most favorable circumstances, expensive and difficult to get them together as regiments at a central location. From this cause, and the want of uniforms, arms and equipments the regiment is not improved in drill and appearance as could be wished.

Col. Gibson intends making some changes by appointing new staff officers and ordering officers' drills. Capt. Levine Wilson has been elected lieutenant colonel, and some competent man will be elected major, and if the State will furnish arms, uniforms and equipments, I think they will make a good regiment. At present they have about 150 Enfield rifles in good condition, and no other arms worthy of mention and no uniforms.

Pursuant to section 151, chap. 477, of the militia law of 1862, the commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the 24th regiment, commanded by Col. Isaac McConihe, the 72d, commanded by Col. Nicholas S. Miller, and the 97th, commanded by Col. Schuyler Greenman, were ordered to rendezvous at Troy on Tuesday, October 24th, 1865. Owing to misunderstanding the brigade inspector was absent, but I am informed that most of the officers were present; that the time was profitably spent in brigade and battalion movement. Gen. Allen was the instructing officer. The annual parade and review of the above named regiments was ordered for October 25th.

The brigade line was formed on 2d street, Troy, at 11 o'clock, and marched to Green Island, where the review took place. The display as they marched through the streets of the city was very fine, and elicited much favorable remark. The two regiments—72d, Col. Miller, and 97th, Col. Greenman, had never before been together as regiments. They acquitted themselves well. Col. McConihe, of the 24th, unable by reason of ill health to take command, was present and shared the honors of the day. Lieut. Col. Leroy commanded the 24th on that occasion.

Brigadier General Allen has appointed a regimental court martial for every regiment in his brigade, for the trial of all delinquents.

The commandants of regiments have made no report to me of enrolled ununiformed militia, as required by paragraph 674, general regulations.

The muster and inspection rolls, giving the names of commissioned, non-commissioned officers, and privates, in alphabetical form; the number present and absent; also the number of arms, uniforms, and equipments, have been transmitted to the Inspector General, and will arrive at your department in due time.

W. H. LAWTON,

Brigade Inspector 10th Brigade N. G. S. N. Y.

REPORT OF MAJOR R. G. MILKS, BRIGADE INSPECTOR OF THE THIRTEENTH BRIGADE, FIFTH DIVISION NA-TIONAL GUARD STATE OF NEW YORK.

ALBANY, November 1, 1865.

Brig. Gen. WILLIAM IRVINE, Adj. Gen. State of New York:

General—In obedience to law and regulations, I have the honor to respectfully submit my report of the inspection of the 13th brigade, N. G. S. N. Y., commanded by Brig. Gen. Elias A. Brown.

The annual inspection of this brigade, consisting of the 26th, 29th and 40th regiments, took place on the 12th and 19th of September. Owing to the large extent of territory which this brigade covers, it was deemed by the Brigadier General impracticable to call the regiments all together; it was therefore ordered that the 26th and 40th regiments should encamp at Fonda for three days—the 11th, 12th and 13th of September—for parade, inspection and review. The 29th regiment was ordered to encamp at Ballston on the 18th, 19th and 20th September, with like instructions. The strength of the several regiments is as follows:

26th regiment (Fulton and Hamilton counties)	558
29th do (1st district Saratoga county)	717
40th do (Montgomery county)	393

Making total strength of brigade 1,668

The arms were found to be in good condition, I may say remarkably so, when it is considered that only part of the companies are provided with armories. The uniforms were entirely new, having been issued but a day or two previous to the parade. The number of arms and uniforms and amount of property in possession of the several regiments, will be found by reference to my abstract of the muster rolls which has been transmitted.

The parade and review of the several regiments were very creditable. The ranks were well represented, and the manœuvring excellent, which was quite surprising, as they had had but little drilling—many of the men having joined the organization but a short time previous to the parade, and the line officers, especially of the 26th regiment, with but few exceptions, do not understand their duties. They are, however, thorough and determined men, and with a little more experience, I am satisfied will make good officers. The field and staff are better posted in their duties, having been connected with the National Guard a greater length of time, and many of them having seen actual service in the field.

In contrast with the parade and inspection of a year ago, there can be no comparison except in numbers; for, although the men turned out promptly in obedience to orders, they were not possessed of the needed equipments to make them feel or appear like soldiers.

As the National Guard organization depends for its success upon the good will of the public, I deem it proper to note, as far as I could judge, the feeling that existed then and now. Then people of all classes were disposed to ridicule the idea of a National Guard, and were quite outspoken in their denunciations. I felt, as did also other officers of the brigade, that if something was not done to stimulate and give encouragement to the organization, it would be short-lived; but at the last parade the feeling was entirely different. Large numbers of citizens were present, many coming from long distances to witness the review, and in many instances manifested their satisfaction by expressions of approbation.

The 26th and 40th regiments were reviewed by General Brown commanding, and staff, in the presence of Major Gen. S. S. Burnside commanding 5th division, and staff, on the 13th; and notwithstanding the day was exceedingly hot, every movement was executed with promptness, and the commands obeyed in such good spirit, that the thousands present—among whom were many ladies—were so deeply interested and well pleased, that the extreme heat had no effect to drive them off the ground.

The line was addressed by both Generals Burnside and Brown in a few appropriate remarks, giving encouragement to the men and instructions to the officers, which were listened to with a great deal of attention and interest, and responded to in rounds of applause—showing the good feeling existing with the men for their commanding General.

The 29th regiment was reviewed on the 19th by General Brown and staff. The regiment made a fine appearance, being mostly composed of large sized men. The uniforms, of which they have 400, were all filled, and quite a number without uniforms were formed on the left of each company. In regard to the public feeling, it was much the same as in the case of the other two regiments; but the rank and file were not so cheerful in the performance of their duties. The feeling is caused, as near as I can learn, by their being obliged to perform duty, and subject to all liabilities for non-performance, when in the adjoining district there is no organization, where men of all classes and ages escape doing military duty. I am informed that there has been no enrollment made, in which case, of course, men liable are not notified to parade, and consequently are not subject to fine. This of course should have no influence; nevertheless, it has a strong tendency to create bad feeling, and should be remedied. It is important, in order to attain ultimate success, that duty should be imposed equally upon all sections.

I would respectfully suggest, that it is a heavy tax upon members of the National Guard, who have families to support by their daily labor, to be obliged to attend three days encampment, and in addition to furnishing their own rations, be compelled to ride long distances on the railroads and pay their own fare. Would it be asking too much, or too arbitrary to have a provision in the law compelling railroad companies to carry the men free to and from encampments? These corporations are protected by this organization; they hold the State responsible for any damage or loss by riot. Why not return this obligation? They should have the friendliest feeling for the organization. If this cannot be accomplished, is it not the duty of the State to furnish transportation to these men? Many of them would find it a pecuniary gain to stay at home during parade, &c., and submit to the extreme penalties of the law.

Hoping for relief for these members of the National Guard in this respect, and for the general success of the organization, this report is respectfully submitted.

Very respectfully, &c.,

R. G. MILKS,

Maj. and Insp. 13th Brigade, N. G. S. N. Y.

REPORT OF MAJOR E. W. LEWIS, BRIGADE INSPECTOR SIXTEENTH BRIGADE FOURTH DIVISION NATIONAL GUARD STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE OF BRIGADE INSPECTOR, 16TH BRIG., N. G. S. N. Y., }
December, 1865. }

To Brigadier General WM. IRVINE,

Adjutant General of the State of New York:

When, always, it is the relative value of hostile armies which is calculated upon for success, the following items enter far more into the determination of the effective force of an army than the mere numbers, viz: What is their organization and discipline? Are the troops opposed veterans or raw levies? Are they well or illy officered? Is the army which manœuvres well and quickly, opposed to one which can do neither?

Napoleon calculated on such considerations and was almost universally successful. So it was with Cæsar in conquering Gaul. So with Hannibal, when he made Rome tremble. So with Alexander when he marched the Macedonians to the Indus. So with Frederick in defending Prussia for seven years against the three most powerful States of Europe. So with Taylor at the battle of Buena Vista, when he, with his five thousand, flogged Santa Anna with his twenty thousand.

I make this allusion under the conviction that it was numbers merely which conquered the South. Therefore it becomes a sad reflection that the blood of hundreds of thousands of the prime men of our country was drank up during the rebellion because we had the numbers, but lacked the science of war.

"Life is a warfare." So with a nation; and it must prepare for war if it would diminish the calamities of war, when war shall have come. The people of "the Empire State" and of our whole country have the sad opportunity to learn the importance of a well organized militia since the beginning of the rebellion, and the great value of a militia system for the education of officers and men.

A few continued to see the importance of "a well regulated militia," and strove to keep the cherished system of our fathers alive amid the opposition of legislators, and intentional neglect of duty by jurists, district attorneys, assessors, collectors and supervisors, they disregarding their oath of office.

Officers and men in the rural districts were compelled to sit as jurors, and pay full amount of road work notwithstanding the immunities then belonging to them. If he objected he was tauntingly told he had no uniform, no arms, no equipage. If the objector replied "the State was to furnish them," he was insultingly answered

"We have not seen that law;" so pleading ignorance to hide their iniquity. The faithful ones however who bruted opposition were the patriots who were first to be relied upon; and a large portion of the volunteer officers, who went forth to fight down rebellion, received their preliminary knowledge of military in the ranks of the State militia. Had we THEY had a fully organized and "well regulated militia" throughout our State, and through ALL the States, the blood of thousands might have been saved to our country, and to their wives, sisters, brothers, parents and children; a large portion of whom are now, as a consequence, stricken with poverty and draped in mourning. "Knowledge is power" and, if the United States fill their destiny, military knowledge must be diffused amongst the masses. West Point monopolies will not answer this great and inevitable necessity. A large standing army does not comport with the institutions of our country. The militia system WILL; and our condition is better adapted for such a system than Prussia or Switzerland.

There must be more stringency in enforcing the militia law. And reckoning upon the premise that the Empire State has a population of four millions, one-fifth of which are subject to enrollment, between the ages of 18 and 45, numbering eight hundred thousand, section 21 of the militia law of 1865 requires less than forty-two thousand to complete the organizations upon the minimum basis; this forty-two thousand reduces the number enrolled to seven hundred and fifty-eight thousand; throw off fifty-eight thousand for exempts, deduct one hundred thousand for sneaks and evaders of law and duty, leaves six hundred thousand. Raise the fine on the reserve to TWO DOLLARS, this will induce a certain class to choose to train "on the first Monday of September" (which will of itself constitute a formidable force), say one-third of the six hundred thousand, equal to two hundred thousand. The other two-thirds of the six hundred thousand, equal to four hundred thousand, at two dollars each, would yield to the State eight hundred thousand dollars. Men of professions, and men of profitable commercial business, will sooner pay this rate than train on the first Monday of September, and arm and equip themselves. Another lamentably large class, who are too lazy to train, (unless they can "train on a bust,") will also pay the two dollars; and such ought to pay largely, in proportion to their purse and brains; because, that would be all they would be worth to the country THEY LIVE UPON. And such ought to be taxed for their own good and good of community, till they could buy no more tobacco or whiskey.

The immunities of section 146 of militia law of 1862, should be EXTENDED to every man who belongs to the National Guards, or trains on the first Monday of September. This would be an additional inducement for doing military duty and at the same time throw a certain burthen of tax where it more properly belongs.

While speaking of the immunities of section 146, Law of 1862, I am reminded of the complaints now going up because those immunities are taken away by the act of 1865. From my own views of Constitutional rights, I have been induced to encourage those who were members of the National Guard before its passage that they would be allowed those immunities.

If the State would have the organizations in the rural districts brought out of comparative chaos, it must immediately furnish the company books, and enforce the keeping of a minute history of the company and of the reserve, who train on the first of September, as well as of the enrolled who ought to pay tax by commutation. And commanders of regiments and companies must better acquaint themselves with general regulations and the militia law. These deficiencies caused serious difficulties at inspection and muster this fall, considering the weak condition of the brigade formerly commanded by a vulgar inebriate, and next by one who was almost wholly ignorant of his duty; and then came the war of the rebellion, demanding so many to go forth to battle; these and the opposition to the militia system, with the rawness of the militia organizations in the rural districts, all taken into account, I yet am happy to say there now exists in the 16th brigade district ample element and material to do credit to themselves and honor to the State.

Much therefore depends upon the question: Who shall be the next commandant of the 16th brigade as General? He should be "one who has read some," and is acquainted with tactics, regulations, the militia law, the Constitution of the State, and of the United States, and the law of Congress passed May 8th, 1792.

After receiving orders for "inspection and muster" from the Inspector General, which came to hand about the middle of September last, and being balked by one or two colonels for nearly two weeks to arrange orders, I was further balked by Brigadier General Hungerford for about three weeks more, as I believe intentionally. I then conferred with Major General T. R. Pratt, and issued brigade order for the "inspection and muster" in conformity to the order from the Inspector General, requiring commandants of regiments, chiefs of staffs and commandants of companies, to obey the order in strict pursuance of the military law of 1865 and general regulations, and also of circular number two, issued by Gen. Geo. S. Batcheller, on the 8th day of September, 1865. The order was published in a newspaper, daily and weekly, for a week before the inspecting commenced, and was also distributed post paid, through the brigade to commandants of regiments and chiefs of regimental staffs. There was reason to expect THIRTY-EIGHT companies for inspection. Ten of the 87th, Col. M. M. Smith; ten of the 94th, Col. J. M. Sigourney; ten of the 35th, Lieut. Col. Wm. M. Coburn; and eight of the 36th, Col. W. P. Davis. But six companies only of 87th; nine of the 94th; seven of the 35th; and eight of the 36th appeared. Two companies of the 35th barely appeared by one, (Capt. Shaffer,) Co. D, and Capt. Hall, Co. I, by only seven, yet these companies pretended to number full companies.

The officers and men generally appeared zealous, and manifested honesty of motive and intention to do their whole duty. They however complained that the State had failed to furnish company books, uniforms, arms, and equipments, and that their rights had been illy respected by civil officers. Those of the field and staff who appeared, made fair show of a knowledge of their duty, and were handsomely uniformed and equipped. Col. Sigourney, 94th, and Col. Davis, 36th, manifested a zeal praiseworthy indeed, in going with me through their respective regiments; and I should say the same of Major Henderson, of the 35th, who is an ex-colonel of the old militia before 1847.

My duty compels me to give it as my opinion that the failure to appear, of so many companies of the 35th and 87th, was owing to commandants of both regiments and companies, and an investigation should be had.

Col. Davis, of the 36th, was active, and all of his companies appeared. For the short time Col. Davis has been commissioned, and the small amount of material (few being left from the war) he had to make up his eight companies from, I am constrained to say his regiment, in all respects, is most praiseworthy.

Col. Sigourney was not in fault for the non-appearance of company I, which requires an investigation. A thorough investigation should be had as to the non-appearance and deficiencies of companies B, C, D, and G, of the 35th; also of companies B, E, H, and I, of the 87th.

We have an enemy on our north and on the south, and both are strong in naval power on our east and west. Desperadoes and refugees from the South, and "skedaddlers" from the North, have filled the British provinces. "Round-eds," agitators and robucks "hat 'ome," and in the provinces, and through all the region of the Hudson's Bay Company, intend to annoy us; but give us the "well organized militia" in the Northern States, and the authority to "say the word," and we will have but little more to do than to "give notice to quit." Then we would win a territory as vast as that we already have.

At any rate we must have the "well regulated militia." Crime is increasing. Desperadoes are multiplying and bidding defiance to civil authorities and civil officers. Before another year rolls around many instances are to happen where the National Guard will be needed. From my personal knowledge through some twenty-five of the different States, and of the British provinces, I believe the National Guard will be needed.

Company armories should be furnished, and each company should be furnished with uniforms, arms, and equipments, in its own vicinity, with a small amount of fixed ammunition—so that desperadoes may find that there is at hand, in every company locality, especially along the lines of the northern frontier, an armed force, made up of the honest and conscientious yeomanry, determined to support law and order and the Union forever.

The aggregate return of the inspection I have the honor to transmit to you, shows the present strength of the brigade, and the different regiments constituting the same.

All of which are respectfully submitted.

E. W. LEWIS,
Inspector 16th Brigade N. G. S. N. Y.

REPORT OF MAJOR GEORGE O. MEAD, BRIGADE INSPECTOR EIGHTEENTH BRIGADE FIFTH DIVISION NATIONAL GUARD STATE OF NEW YORK.

OFFICE OF THE BRIGADE INSPECTOR
18TH BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y.,
WALTON, DEL. CO., Nov. 1, 1865. }

To the Adjutant General:

General—In compliance with the statute and regulations I have the honor of reporting to you the result of the late annual inspection ordered by General George E. Danforth, of the 18th brigade, as follows:

The 27th, Col. James Oliver commanding, at Andes, Delaware county, on the 2d of October. The 108th, Col. A. N. Wakefield commanding, at Schoharie, on the 20th of September. The 83d, Col. R. Furman commanding, at Schenectady, on the 25th of September. The 100th, Col. W. Martin commanding, at Walton, Delaware county, on the 3d of October.

The strength of the several regiments was:

Present at the Parade.

27th	447
108th	423
83d	361
100th	321
	<hr/>
Total strength present.....	1,557

Absent from Parade.

27th	164
108th	476
83d	277
100th	206
	<hr/>
	1,123
	<hr/>
Strength of the brigade.....	2,680
	<hr/> <hr/>

The 27th regiment will compare favorably with any in the brigade. Uniforms, equipments, and arms new and in perfect order, and the battalion drill creditable. The regiment is, however, deficient in company drill, and the study of the school of the company has evidently received little attention from the line officers.

The 83d made a fine appearance in line; arms, equipments, and uniforms in good order. The battalion drill exhibited deficiency in knowledge of the tactics by most of the commanding officers of companies, with a general lack of discipline, especially noticeable among the staff officers. Several of the city companies having drill rooms, are quite proficient in company drill and the school of the soldier.

The 108th had a regular encampment, using for that purpose the "agricultural grounds." The parade lasted four days, during which time the regiment was under the discipline and regulations of the United States army, and the men were instructed in all the duties of camp life. The effect of discipline only attainable in regular encampments was particularly noticeable in the quiet and good order of the camp, and in the soldierly deportment of the officers and men. The arms, equipments, and uniforms of the regiment are new and in unexceptionable condition, and the drills, both by company and battalion, if not of the best, were characterized by patient and careful attention, and an evident desire for improvement.

The 100th regiment has not yet obtained uniforms, although the proper requisition was made at an early day by Colonel Martin, who was assured that the uniforms would certainly be furnished in time for the parade this fall. This regiment has arms and equipments, and all in good order. The failure to procure uniforms has had a very bad effect upon the men. They would not make the effort to improve, necessary to acquire proficiency in drill, and the officers, however efficient, were not able to make much improvement in men who feel that they have been unfairly dealt with by their government.

This regiment is however affected by the same disease prevalent throughout the brigade, viz., the incompetency or inattention of many of the line officers to the study of the tactics.

The several regiments of the brigade generally return full companies of men, and, so far as they have been inspected, of such material for soldiers as is rarely ever seen even in volunteer companies; and when the officers will acquire the necessary knowledge of the tactics to instruct the men, and the requisite discipline to enforce the army regulations, our State will have acquired a citizen soldiery entirely sufficient for any emergency likely to arise.

To effect these objects, I recommend that the military authorities of the State carefully provide to each regiment the arms, equipments and uniforms, and also those equipments necessary for a camp; and that the commandants of regiments be required by a general order to hold encampments in all cases of annual parade, instead of the ordinary review and inspection. I recommend also to commandants of regiments to change entirely the grounds on which their staff officers seem to be selected, and in the future to select those who have not only the influence to procure volunteers, but the requisite military knowledge and efficiency to instruct and command them, and who, knowing their duty, will be capable from their sobriety to be so much the subject of discipline as to remain in camp and perform it.

I remain, General, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

GEO. O. MEAD,

Maj. and Insp. 18th Brigade N. G. S. N. Y.

INSPECTOR TWENTIETH BRIGADE SEVENTH DIVISION
NATIONAL GUARD STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS, 20TH BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y. }
CANISTEO, December 1, 1865. }

To General WM. IRVINE, Adjutant General, S. N. Y. :

General—In compliance with regulation, I have the honor to enclose you the annual inspection and muster rolls for the 20th brigade, N. G., composing the 60th, 104th and 106th regiments.

The inspection and muster for the brigade took place by regiment. That of the 60th regiment, October 16th; the 104th regiment, October 17th; the 106th regiment, October 18th.

The strength of the several regiments present were as follows :

The 60th regiment, present, officers and men.....	292
104th do do do do	260
106th do do do do	333
	<hr/>
Total present	885
Absent from the 60th regiment.....	104
do do 104th do	130
do do 106th do	156
	<hr/>
Total absent.....	390
	<hr/>
Total strength of brigade, present and absent, officers and men.....	1,275
	<hr/> <hr/>

The 60th regiment, Col. S. M. Alley commanding, has 330 United States uniforms, and 325 Springfield rifled muskets and accoutrements—the arms only received the day before inspection. The men very much prefer State regulation coats and caps.

The 104th regiment, Col. C. A. Canfield commanding, has State uniforms for about 200 of his command, and Springfield rifled muskets and accoutrements for 300 of his command.

The arms, accoutrements and uniforms for the 60th and 104th regiments are in good order.

The 106th regiment, Col. C. H. Thomson commanding, has neither arms or clothing, the commanding officer not having applied for either. The 106th regiment is a fine body of men.

The several regimental organizations for this brigade are all new. The regiments have only been organized through the energy and perseverance of the present regimental commanders, who have spared no time or means to perfect their organizations.

There has been no opportunity as yet for the commanding officers of the several regiments to improve and discipline their commands. The time thus far, when called together, has been occupied in perfecting the organizations.

There are some officers in the brigade in the line that are not uniformed in accordance with regulation.

In drill, so far as I have seen, there is not a uniformity. The cause undoubtedly arises from the fact that officers having been in United States service and those who study the National Guard manual, do not understand alike.

Permit me to mention that Lieut. Col. Higgins, of the Inspector General's department, was present, on the 16th October, at the inspection and muster of the 60th regiment, and gave many valuable instructions, and rendered himself very useful.

I am, General, your obdt. serv't,
EDWIN BAKER,
Capt. and Act. Brigade Inspector.

General WM. IRVINE, Adjutant General S. N. Y.

General—I hereby remit the returns of “annual muster and inspection” 25th brigade N. G. S. N. Y. I would state the reasons for the delay in forwarding these returns was my inability to procure the complete returns from the 58th regiment. The returns from that regiment are now incomplete, but six companies being represented. Several orders from brigade headquarters were issued for inspection and muster, but were not promulgated in time by the commanding officer of the regiment. I traversed the entire district for the purpose of making a complete muster, but with poor success.

54th regiment, Col. Clark, are in splendid condition, as is also the battalion light artillery, Major Lewis.

59th regiment, Col. Hoyt, have no uniforms.

107th regiment, Col. Adams, have a desire to be uniformed and equipped speedily as possible. You will see by the return this regiment is the largest in the brigade.

I have the honor to be, General,

Very respectfully, your ob't servant

BUFFALO, December 30, 1865.

Brig. Gen'l WILLIAM IRVINE, Adj't Gen'l S. N. Y.:

General—Pursuant to section 670 of the general regulations, I have the honor to submit the following report of the condition of the 31st brigade, comprising the 65th, 74th and 98th regiments N. G. S. N. Y.:

Pursuant to the militia law, and in accordance with instructions from the Inspector General, on the 27th, 28th and 29th days of September, I inspected and mustered seven (7) companies and field and staff of the 74th regiment, Col. Walter G. Seely. This regiment comprises nine (9) companies, but Co. “E,” Capt. William Clingen, refused to parade on the day appointed for inspection, and Co. F, Capt. James Worthington, was without officers, they being absent, and Col. Seely having neglected to detail an officer to take charge of men and State property issued to this company. Capt. Clingen has since furnished me a roll of his company, and accounted for all State property, and my inspection return includes his command, making eight (8) companies and field and staff, two hundred and eleven (211) commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates present on parade; two hundred and forty-eight (248) absent from parade; total present and absent four hundred and fifty-nine (459), not including Capt Worthington's company, from whom I have no return or any means of learning what it is composed of, or what property has been issued to it. I am informed that the arms have been turned over to the military storekeeper at this station, and that the uniforms are in the possession of the individual members, and cannot now be secured. The custom prevailing in this regiment of allowing uniforms to be taken to the homes of the men, instead of being kept in the company armory, as required by law, and commanding officers, generally, having no idea that they are responsible for this particular class of State property, is resulting to the loss of the State and the regiment, and I am of opinion that a large proportion are already lost, and that another year will find the proportion much greater, finally ending in entire loss long before they should reasonably be expected to have been worn out in the light service which will probably be required. This regiment is armed with the Springfield rifled musket, two hundred (200) of which, with Maynard primers, were issued in the year 1860, the balance are of the regular pattern, and were issued in the year 1864.

The drill and discipline of this regiment is tolerable, and under the direction of Col. George M. Baker, an earnest, efficient and experienced officer, who has lately succeeded Col. Walter G. Seely, is making rapid improvement. I respectfully commend him to your favorable consideration in his earnest efforts to build up and sustain his command. He expresses it as his determination to make it second to none in drill and efficiency, an ornament to our State militia, and asks the needed co-operation and assistance in such effort which he is entitled to from general headquarters.

On the 2d and 3d days of October, and on the 4th day of December, I inspected and mustered seven (7) companies and field and staff of the 65th regiment, Col. William F. Berens. At first I was unable to get but six (6) companies together, though I made repeated efforts for a month after. I was informed that there were two (2) more companies, and that they would be ready in a few days. Company "E," 1st Lieut. Albert Schenwald, were finally paraded for inspection and muster December 4th. Eleven (11) commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers and privates present on parade; twenty-seven (27) absent from parade. Total, present and absent, thirty-eight (38). I then learned that 1st Lieutenant Louis Ellis, commanding company F, positively refused to parade his command, make proper rolls, or any return whatsoever of State property issued to the company. In view of the fact that in July last State uniforms were issued to him, which he receipted for as commandant, this conduct appears to be peculiarly prejudicial to good order and discipline, and calls for immediate attention from the proper officer. My inspection return embraces seven (7) companies and field and staff officers; one hundred and seventy (170) commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates present on parade. Two hundred and twenty-eight (228) absent from parade. Total, present and absent, three hundred and ninety-eight (398), and does not include Lieut. Ellis' command, from whom I have no return, or any means of learning what it is composed of, or what property has been issued to it. The arms are probably in the State arsenal, and the uniforms in the possession of the individual members, scattered throughout the city, possibly some of them in possession of members who have left the city and State. This regiment is armed with percussion rifled muskets, which I have returned as unserviceable. The drill and discipline of this regiment is deficient. The main cause of this probably lies in the fact that in the fall of 1864 authorization was granted to recruit for the U. S. volunteer service, and most of its officers left the city with the 187th N. Y. V. They returned and were mustered out in July last. During this service the organization was but partially maintained, and was regarded as broken up. Colonel Richard Flach has succeeded Colonel Bereus in the colonelcy, and will give his efforts toward reorganization and building up of his command. He asks the needed co-operation and assistance from general headquarters, and is commended to your favorable consideration.

The company armories of these two regiments are in the State arsenal. The rooms, sixteen (16) in number, are too small for the accommodation of most of the companies, and the number insufficient to accommodate the present number of company organizations, leaving no rooms for the officers of either regiment. The rooms have been given over to the companies unfurnished with fixtures, wardrobes, &c. Those of the 74th regiment have been fitted up and neatly furnished at the expense of the respective companies, but most of those of the 65th are destitute of furniture and fixtures, and no means of providing for proper care of uniforms and accoutrements.

On the 19th day of October, at White's Corners, Erie county, I inspected and mustered eight (8) companies and field and staff of the 55th regiment, Col. George Abbott. Two hundred and forty-two

(242) commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates present on parade. One hundred and thirty-eight (138) absent from parade. Total, present and absent, three hundred and eighty (380), which embraces the entire command of Col. Abbott. This regiment is armed with the Springfield rifled musket, which, together with two hundred and fifty (250) uniforms, were issued to it on the 18th day of October, the day before the inspection. On the 10th day of August, 1864, the regiment was assembled in Buffalo, and left for Elmira upon the order of the Commander-in-Chief for muster into the U. S. service, being designated as a part of the quota of the 8th division N. G. S. N. Y., under the requisition of the President of the United States for twelve thousand militia from this State for one hundred days service, and was duly mustered at Elmira for this term, where it remained on duty guarding rebel prisoners until December 22d, 1864, when it returned to Buffalo and was mustered out at the State arsenal, having served four (4) months and twelve (12) days. The drill and discipline is deficient below what should reasonably be expected of a regiment that has had the advantage of such service. The cause of such deficiency lies in the difficulty in maintaining a regimental organization comprised of companies scattered over so large a territory, seldom if ever being brought together for instruction. A portion of the 67th regiment, Colonel Chauncey Abbott, of the 32d brigade, is also within this county, and also scattered throughout the various towns. I am of opinion that it will be found difficult to maintain even one regimental organization outside of this city and within the county, and that the interest of the service would be promoted by uniting those companies of the 67th within this county with the 98th regiment, or consolidating the two regiments under one regimental organization.

The several companies of the 98th regiment have armories in their respective towns, leased by the colonel at the annual rent of fifty ($50) dollars, which are being fitted up to receive their arms, accoutrements and clothing. Col. Abbott, who is commended to your favorable consideration, is an earnest and energetic officer, and labors hard to sustain his command. He informs me that it is his purpose to insist on compliance with the militia law in reference to the care and preservation of all State property, particularly clothing.

My return for the entire brigade exhibits six hundred and twenty-three (623) commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates present on parade. Six hundred and fourteen (614) absent from parade. Twelve hundred and thirty-seven (1237) present and absent, every officer and man in the brigade once counted, except the Brigadier General and his staff, who were absent.

The rank and file is good, but great lack of efficiency exists among officers. If with line officers an election was more strictly regarded as a nomination for office, and the Commander-in-Chief should require some evidence of a person's fitness for the office before commissioning, a better class of officers might be secured, which would have the effect to greatly augment the number of members.

As it is, elections are often held when but a small number of members are present, which too often result in the choice of persons not fitted for the office as well as not satisfactory to the majority of members. These two disqualifications are sufficient to ruin almost any organization, and bring discredit on the National Guard. A competent officer, if not personally agreeable to his command, will always command a degree of respect, will generally succeed in building up an efficient company, and finally win their confidence and esteem; while an incompetent officer, though popular with his command for a season, will finally lose the respect due to an officer, will fail to add new recruits, and his command, reduced in numbers, lose their interest, and finally the organization amounts to nothing. I am of opinion that judicious appointments would in the end give more general satisfaction than commissions upon elections now do.

No regimental or company books were exhibited to me by any officer in the brigade, and none are provided with them. A general system of looseness pervades the manner of enlisting men, and many companies have but imperfect if any record of enlistments and company business.

Regimental commanders are much discouraged in view of the fact that on account of some informality they have not received the expected regimental fund, and of a necessity they find it difficult to keep up their commands without it.

In view of the condition and necessities of this brigade, I have the honor to respectfully submit the following recommendations for the consideration of the Commander-in-Chief:

1. That Col. Richard Flach, 65th regiment, be directed to turn over to the military storekeeper of this place the arms in possession of his regiment, and returned as unserviceable, and make requisition for the same number of Springfield rifled muskets.

2. That each company commandant be required at once to give bonds for the safe keeping and careful preservation of all uniforms and other State property in his possession.

3. That the resignation of no officer be accepted until evidence is filed with the Adjutant General that all State property in his possession has been duly turned over to his successor, who shall also give satisfactory security for the same.

4. That all elections to office be regarded as a nomination, and no commission be issued until the candidate file evidence with the Brigadier General of some fitness for the office to which he is nominated, upon whose recommendation he will be commissioned, after giving requisite bonds.

5. That an examining board be convened at this place, at an early day, to institute inquiry as to the competency of officers of this brigade, and the attention they are giving their commands.

6. That each regimental and company commander be furnished with the necessary regimental and company books, and be required to keep them properly written up.

7. That all enlistment papers be made in triplicate—one to be retained by the captain, one to be furnished to the adjutant of the regiment, and one to the Adjutant General.

8. That the company armories of the several regiments of this brigade not already provided with proper fixtures, be at once so provided at the expense of the State, after which all uniforms be kept in the company armory, as required by law.

9. That as each regiment has the required number of men to entitle them to the regimental fund of $500, though not the required number of companies, they each be allowed this sum for the past and ensuing year.

10. That the 67th regiment be consolidated with the 98th regiment under one regimental organization, or that the companies of the 67th regiment within the county of Erie be attached to the 98th regiment.

I have the honor to be, General,

Very respectfully your obedient servant,

J. M. JOHNSON,

Major and Inspector 31st Brigade N. G. S. N. Y.

REPORT OF MAJOR DANIEL D. NASII, BRIGADE INSPECTOR THIRTY-SECOND BRIGADE EIGHTH DIVISION NATIONAL GUARD STATE OF NEW YORK.

HEADQUARTERS 32D BRIGADE, 8TH DIVISION N. G. S. N. Y.

General—I have the honor to report an inspection, made by myself, of the regiments composing this brigade, on the 10th and 23d days of October, an abstract of which inspection you will please find enclosed; and that I find the brigade composed of material which, properly officered, would soon be made well drilled and finely disciplined troops, while now too many of the rank of field and line seem to think their only duties were comprised in the acceptance of their commissions. I have endeavored hard to infuse an interest among them in their organizations, and in an acquisition of a military education, with what success remains to be seen. In obedience to orders from your department, I proceeded to Fredonia to inspect Gen'l D. S. Forbes' brigade, after having written him announcing the receipt by me of the aforesaid order. On arriving upon the ground, I found he had appointed a citizen, an acting brigade inspector, and ordered him to proceed with the inspection in accordance with instructions he produced, received by him from the Inspector General at Albany, and before the receipt of my letter informing him of your order concerning the matter, an answer to which letter I received after my journey there, a copy of which I hereby transmit. The inspection had proceeded so far under this unsoldierly jumbling of affairs, that I did not attempt to finish it, though Gen'l Forbes intimated that he could do nothing more nor less than complete the inspection through his appointee, after having read your order No. 377; delighted with the beauties of the military discipline of the N. Y. S. National Guard, I returned. In the 32d brigade I found all of subordinate disposition, which I pray may be rewarded by a speedy issue of arms and uniforms, an encouraging feature which I think will bring the brigade forward, in every point of view, without delay. I drilled both regiments every day of the encampments, and never saw men learn so much in so little time as did these. I send by express to the Inspector General the rolls, exhibiting the result of the muster made by me on the 11th, 12th, 23d and 24th days of October. The fact that not more than fifty per cent were present, I believe to be directly attributable, in good part, to the lack of arms and uniforms.

I am, sir,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

DAN'L D. NASH,

Major and Inspector 32d Brig., 8th Div. N. Y. S. N. G.

HEADQUARTERS 26TH BRIGADE N. G. S. N. Y., }
FREDONIA, October 8th, 1865. }

To DANIEL NASH, Brigade Inspector, 32d Brigade:

Major—Your orders of Sept. 17th, 1865, and your letter of the 5th inst., were duly received. The first, or order, was not deemed of sufficient moment to require an answer. The latter would not, only as it will serve to place you right and give you a clever hint that your duties are confined to the 32d brigade, your assumptions and evident want of proper military discipline in your instructions to a superior officer, requires me to say that the 26th brig. (as you will see from enclosed gen'l orders) has no use of your services.

I am, Major, yours very respectfully,

D. S. FORBES,

Brig. Gen'l and Com'g 26th Brig. N. G. S. N. Y.
